Hague, N. J. Switch To Eisenhower; Boom Spreads to 24 States

N. Y. Leaders Indicate They Will Back General If He Accepts Call

Democratic leaders in 24 States, topped by the entire New Jersey delegation, lined up yesterday for the nomination of General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower for President. A direct appeal was made to the general to say that he will run if drafted at the Democratic National Convention in Philadelphia next week.

The direct plea to the general to yield to the snowballing draft movement was made by Senator John J. Sparkman of Alabama, a leader of the anti-Truman forces, who said in a broadcast from Washington (WINX) that it was the general's "duty" to run and he gave 10 reasons why.

"We believe that you, General Eisenhower, more than any other American, are especially equipped to give us the leadership this Nation and these times demand," he said.

"Stop-Truman" Caucus

The new Eisenhower boom took shape on a cohesive, national scale after the announcement Saturday that all delegates to the Philadelphia convention, which opens next Monday, were invited to a "Stop-Truman" caucus in the convention city Saturday night.

Despite the surprise switch to the general by Frank Hague, the veteran New Jersey leader, New York's ranking party chieftains made it plain that they will make no such move without assurances that the general will accept the nomination.

If such assurance comes, directly or indirectly, it was tacitly conceded that the great majority of New York's 106 delegates, with 98 votes, will go along with New Jersey, and with Georgia and Virginia, which have climbed on the Eisenhower bandwagon. The New Jersey shift gave the general 110 pledged votes.

General Eisenhower, who took over his duties as president of Columbia University June 7, was not available over the holiday weekend.

May See Reporters Tuesday

It was considered likely that he would meet reporters Tuesday, however, when he speaks at the opening of Columbia's summer session. He is scheduled to talk at 1:10 p. m.

Motorcyclists Take Over Town, Battle Police

Riverside, Calif., July 4 (AP).—The celebration of Independence Day in Riverside started riotously and may finish that way.

Police Lieut. Paul Stanley said 28 persons, most of them motorcyclists en route to an amateur racing meet at nearby Box Springs, had been jailed for drunkenness and disturbance.

More than 2000 cyclists roared through Riverside, littered streets with beer bottles and threw firecrackers at officers who tried to arrest them.

Lieutenant Stanley said some of the cyclists used traffic lights as starting signals for races down the main street, and that others blocked off traffic so companions could spin circles at intersections.

Sheriff Carl F. Rayburn was set upon by a group of riders when he remonstrated. His clothing was torn and he was punched by a cyclist who fled, but was later arrested and charged with drunkenness.

Fiery Plunge Kills All

39 Die When Two Transports Crash in Cloud Over London

RAF Ship, Swedish Airliner, Destroyed; 2 Americans Die

London, July 4 (AP).—Thirty-nine persons, including two Americans, were killed today in the worst disaster of British civil aviation history—the collision of two four-engined transport planes in a rainstorm over suburban London.

The planes, an RAF transport and a Swedish airliner, crashed and burned with all aboard.

Twenty-five passengers and seven crew members were aboard the Swedish plane on a regular flight from Stockholm and Copenhagen. It tried in vain to turn back to Amsterdam for a safe landing.

Sir Edward Gent, British high commissioner for the Federation of Malaya, and six Royal Air Force crew members died in the flaming wreckage of the RAF York, developed since the war from bomber designs for civilian use.

Uncertainty over the total number of casualties lasted more than six hours after the crash. The Air Ministry did not know how many had boarded the York at Malta.

Finally, an Air Ministry spokesman, who had estimated earlier that there might be 33 aboard and later said "about a dozen," said it had been established that Gent was the only passenger.

The two planes collided with a deafening roar inside a cloud and then plummeted to earth. The Swedish plane landed beside a roadway, and the RAF transport crashed into a wooded area.

Aide Insists Truman Sure Of Nomination

Top Adviser Feels Eisenhower Boom Will Fail Quickly

Aboard Truman Train en route to Bolivar, Mo., July 5 (AP).—A top aide said tonight that President Truman is "absolutely convinced" that opposition to his nomination will collapse at the Democratic National Convention.

This official, who declined to be quoted by name, contended that at least some of the advocates of the move to draft General Dwight D. Eisenhower are using him as a cover for their efforts to give the nomination to Associate Justice William O. Douglas of the Supreme Court.

He said that Mr. Truman believes that the former Chief of Staff of the Army is a Republican and would not be available for a Democratic nomination.

Attended Recent Parley

The official was among those who attended a White House Democratic political parley last Wednesday.

Reporters interviewed the presidential confidante aboard Mr. Truman's special train en route to Bolivar, Mo., for the dedication tomorrow of a statue to Simon Bolivar, South American liberator.

The President was accompanied by President Gallegos of Venezuela, whose government is presenting the $100,000 statue to the town of Bolivar. Gallegos will speak at 1:15 p. m. (EST), Mr. Truman 15 minutes later.

This official said that the drive to stampede the Democratic convention to nominate Eisenhower will fail. He claimed that Mr. Truman has sufficient delegates to win on the first ballot.

He insisted that neither the

England Starts 'Free' Medical, Dental Service

Weekly Wage Levy Of 14c Will Help Meet Program Cost

London, July 4 (AP).—Beginning tomorrow residents of England and Wales can stop worrying about doctors' bills.

Hospital bills, too, will cease to concern the individual. Dentistry, spectacles, devices to improve hearing and artificial limbs will be free for the asking and nursing in homes will be provided by the government.

Although the Britisher will not have to dig up a fee for his doctor the government will deduct a small sum—about 14 cents—from his salary each week to help defray expenses of the new health plan.

Thousands of druggists will fill prescriptions and send the bill to the state.

All this is part of the national health service which commits the government to look after the health of the people. Everyone—rich man, poor man, child and adult—is in it. Even the foreigner who becomes ill while traveling in England or Wales is eligible.

The state assumes ownership of 2827 hospitals and 640 clinics, though some 200 hospitals, most of them owned by religious orders, will be outside the state health scheme.

Of the 17,000 doctors in England and Wales, 14,784 have signed to take part. These will get a large portion of their fees from the government. The others have chosen to remain private practitioners. But they may use the hospitals, and can join the service at any time.

Health Minister Aneurin Bevan says most doctors will have most of their old patients. Most hospital workers will be unaware of any

Exciting Watergate Concert Thrills Huge Holiday Crowd

By Paul Hume

Washington's thrill-packed holiday week-end centered around the Watergate last night.

There, before one of the largest crowds in Watergate history, Howard Mitchell led this summer's National Symphony in an exciting concert with Dorothy Maynor as one of the greatest soloists in years.

It was a perfect musical celebration of the Fourth of July. Great American and Washington traditions were abundantly evident. The audience was welcomed by David Karrick of the symphony board of directors, and by Joseph McGarraghy of the Washington Board of Trade. They told of the efforts of those two organizations to bring about this summer's series, and we are profoundly grateful to them and to all those who have made the 12-concert schedule possible.

The audience was so large, and the demand for tickets so great, that at intermission time there was a double line of people still waiting to buy tickets. They filled seats, dozens of canoes, launches and rowboats and covered adjacent slopes right up to the Lincoln Memorial. They shouted their approval of practically all that transpired, and well they might.

We heard, "When Johnny Comes Marching Home Again," the Grand Canyon Suite, and short pieces by Mary Howe, Leo Sowerby, and Edward MacDowell. And we heard Dorothy Maynor.

It has been our pleasure to hear this great American artist many times, but never have we heard her do anything more wonderful than her entire outpouring of song last evening. The touching song to the moon from Dvorak's neglected opera, "Rusalka," fitted both occasion and singer in subtlest fashion. Sharply contrasting, Verdi's "Pace, pace" was pure Italianate excite-

Soviet Aim Is to Prevent West State

End of Blockade Reported Hinged On Abandonment of Plan for Germany

By Marguerite Higgins

Berlin, July 4 (NYHT).—Marshal Vassily D. Sokolovsky, the Soviet commander in Germany, has made it clear to the three western military governors that the Soviet condition for lifting the blockade of Berlin is abandonment of the six-nation London agreement for a west German state.

This was the most significant development of the otherwise unfruitful meeting yesterday between the Soviet commander and the three western commanders, a highly placed informant said today.

This clarification of the Soviet position has been reported to Washington, London and Paris, according to the informant, who said the western military governors regard it as of the utmost importance because up to the last minute the British and French officials here had believed a compromise on the German currency issue might solve the Berlin crisis.

The Russians gave the introduction of the western currency into Berlin as one of the reasons for stopping traffic between Berlin and the west through their zone.

To delay the creation of a west German state, the Russians are striving to have the entire German problem reopened at a meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers, this authoritative source said.

[Diplomatic circles in Washington believed that following the failure of the occupation commanders Saturday to break the Berlin blockade, a direct demand would be delivered to Moscow within a matter of hours.—Editor's note.]

In analyzing yesterday's meet-

Anti-French Feeling Increased by Lottery

Frankfurt, July 4 (NYHT).—A lottery has resulted in growing anti-French feeling among western German political leaders.

There were three key papers to be read at Thursday's meeting in which American, British and French military governors instructed German leaders in setting up a west German state.

Lots were drawn and Gen. Pierre Koenig was selected to read the much-criticized "occupation statute."

The Germans, knowing nothing of the lottery, are identifying the statute as a French creation.

Jewish-Arab Economic Union Is Proposed by Bernadotte; Rejections by Both Reported

Jerusalem Clashes On Sunday Mark 1st Major Break In Cease-Fire Pact

Cairo, July 4 (AP).—Authoritative sources said tonight both the Arabs and the Jews have rejected the Palestine peace proposals offered by the United Nations mediator.

The mediator, Count Folke Bernadotte, was reported by a high Egyptian source to have asked for an extension of the present Holy Land truce. The four-week truce in the Arab-Jewish war is scheduled to expire Friday.

The question of renewed fighting in Palestine appeared to hinge on whether the Arabs and Jews, both dissatisfied with Bernadotte's peace plans, would continue their discussions when the truce ends.

New clashes between Arabs and Jewish troops were reported, this time in the City of Jerusalem. Mortars, cannon and machine guns were fired sporadically for 12 hours last night and early today in the first major rupture of the U. N.'s cease-fire agreement.

Jewish Proposals Awaited

The Mufti of Jerusalem, Haj Amin el Husseini, said in Cairo the Arab League bloc of seven Moslem countries had rejected the mediator's recommendations for a Holy Land settlement.

The mufti said he knew nothing of any counter-proposals in the Arab League reply and declared he would oppose any extension of the truce.

In Tel Aviv, capital of Israel, an authoritative government source said Israel has decided to turn down Bernadotte's proposals.

The Arab League already has submitted a lengthy list of counterproposals to the U. N. mediator. Neutral diplomatic sources expected Israeli authorities also would have counter-proposals to give Bernadotte.

Whether Bernadotte's reply to the Jews and Arabs will contain new suggestions for a Palestine settlement depends on the nature of counter-proposals which may be offered by both sides, he said.

The Arab League political committee, which composed the reply to Bernadotte, met today. In attendance were the chief of staff of the Iraqi army and the commander of Iraqi troops in Palestine. Aides said the committee is now discussing Arab military operations in Palestine after the truce expires.

U. N. Mediator Working Desperately To Prevent Renewal Of Holy Land War

Lake Success, N. Y., July 4 (U.P.).—Count Folke Bernadotte announced today a sweeping new Palestine peace plan providing that Jews and Arabs, including Trans-Jordan, join in an economic union.

Bernadotte's proposal included alterations in Jewish and Arab areas of Palestine as provided in a United Nations partition plan, and suggested that Jersualem be turned over to the Arabs.

The U. N. mediator was working desperately to prevent a renewal of fighting when the four-week truce expires Friday.

United Press dispatches from Cairo quoted an Egyptian cabinet minister as saying the Arabs had rejected a proposal by Bernadotte to extend the truce.

Counterproposals Made

But at least they had submitted counterproposals to him and Bernadotte, at his Rhodes headquarters, now awaited a reply from the Jews.

Bernadotte said he probably would leave for Tel Aviv Monday or Tuesday and from there go to Cairo to meet the Arab League political committee.

"I would not be going back to Cairo if the door were not still open," he said. "I do not walk through closed doors."

The Israeli cabinet met in Tel Aviv tonight to prepare its reply. Political observers predicted the government would flatly reject the U. N. mediator's plan.

Bernadotte in his new peace plan suggested:

1. Inclusion of all or part of the Negeb in southern Palestine in Arab territory.
2. Inclusion of all or part of western Galilee in Jewish territory.
3. Inclusion of Jerusalem in Arab territory with municipal autonomy for Jews and special arrangements for protection of holy places.
4. Consideration of the status of Jaffa, the all-Arab sister city of the Israeli capital of Tel Aviv.
5. Establishment of a free port at Haifa, the free area to include oil refineries and pipeline terminals.
6. Establishment of a free airport at Lydda, awarded to the Arabs in the U. N. partition plan.

Jews would be permitted unlimited immigration for two years. After that time the Arabs might

Church Urges Priests, Nuns Quit Hungary

By Seymour Freidin

Vienna, July 4 (NYHT).—The Catholic hierarchy in Hungary has advised all priests and nuns engaged in the teaching and nursing professions to leave the country as soon as possible, unless expressly required in small communities.

Clergymen who have just arrived here from Hungary disclosed that their superiors suggested it would be better to depart lest they be pressed into labor battalions. They said none of the priests and nuns who constitute the majority of teachers in Hungary have signed a declaration agreeing to work in the schools which the Communist-led government recently nationalized.

As a result, the government has begun to regard them as unemployed. Therefore, according to the priests, they are subject to government "voluntary work assignments."

Meanwhile, British military authorities disclosed that more than 3000 able-bodied Hungarian young men have made their way through the Russian zone of Austria into the British area within the last 10 weeks.

Tito Backers To Set Policy At Belgrade

London, July 4 (AP).—Yugoslavia has invited all Communist parties to attend the fifth Congress of Yugoslavia's Communist Party in Belgrade July 21, Tanjug, the official Yugoslav news agency, said tonight.

Thus, it was felt, Yugoslavia has set the stage for an eastern European showdown on its policies this month.

The invitation was extended only a few hours after Bulgaria bluntly called upon Yugoslavia to say whether it plans to remain in eastern Europe's Communist camp or seek a partnership with the western powers.

The action followed by a day Albania's decision to break off trade relations with Yugoslavia and its demand that Yugoslav economic, cultural and military missions get out of the country.

Both Yugoslavia and Albania figure directly in the deliberations of the Yugoslav Communist Congress.

Only a few days ago, the Communist Central Committee advanced the program it would advocate at the congress, including the formation of a Balkan bloc of

Sunday Fourth Here Subdued; Real Celebration Due Today

Sparkle, Pomp, Gaiety To Mark Independence Observances in Area

Washington was as subdued as an exploded firecracker yesterday but plenty of sparkle, pomp and gaiety will punctuate Independence Day celebrations today.

Save for patriotic church sermons, a Watergate Concert emphasizing America's heritage and other scattered events, July 4 slipped unobtrusively away—relaxed as any summer Sunday.

Today, however, brilliant fireworks, lofty speeches and colorful parades will dot the Greater Washington area as thousands of stay-at-home residents pay their yearly formal homage to the Declaration of Independence.

Yesterday, as the thermometer soared to a high of 90 degrees—at 5:15 p. m.—police reported one heat prostration case. The victim, identified as Plumer Baker, 24, of 212 Indiana ave., collapsed at 1612 Manchester lane nw. He was treated at Emergency Hospital.

Meanwhile, Washington is due for more of yesterday's heat and humidity today, with only a slim chance of showers. A high of 90 degrees is expected.

Yesterday's weather was marked by a fast-moving, violent thunderstorm early yesterday morning that caused some damage near Falls Church Va.

The storm, described by some residents as a "minor tornado," originated near Front Royal, the Weather Bureau said, passed northwest of Falls Church, and spent itself north of Washington roughly following the northwest District line. The wind and rain came at about 3:30 a. m., felling several trees, one of which hit an automobile in the 1000 block of Birch st., Falls Church.

Milton G. Yates, 46, of 1003 31st st. se., picked a stray firecracker up on the street, he told police, and it exploded. He was treated at Casualty Hospital for neck lacerations.

About 250,000 persons, including

The Washington Post Poll

15% in D. C. Don't Know Why We Celebrate Fourth of July

Fifteen out of every hundred Washingtonians do not know why we celebrate the Fourth of July.

A survey of a cross-section of adults living in the District and nearby Maryland and Virginia by The Washington Post Poll, found that 12 per cent had no idea why the Fourth of July is a great national holiday. An additional 3 per cent confused Independence Day with other events in the history of our country.

Washingtonians were asked:

"Fourth of July is almost here. Can you tell me why we celebrate it?"

The replies:

	All Groups	Educational Level Grade	High	College
Fourth of July is to celebrate the Declaration of Independence	85%	61%	88%	97%

Those who answered the first question correctly were asked:

"What does that mean to you?"

Answers were grouped as follows:

National Freedom 39%
"Means the day we were declared a free people, the colonies independent from the "Mother Country"; "Birth of a great democracy"; "We're not governed by any other nation"; "The right to live our own way, the right to our own government," etc.

Liberal Party supporters of Domingo Diaz Arosemena are contesting the result of the election. An official recount is under way.

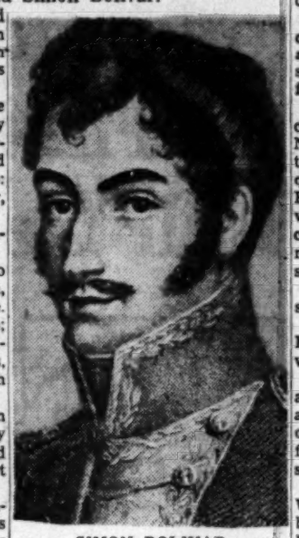
PEOPLE In The NEWS

Simon Bolivar Links the Fifth of July With Independence in Latin America

Just as the Fourth of July is forever forged with Independence and George Washington, so is the Fifth of July forever linked with Independence and Simon Bolivar.



SIMON BOLIVAR
. . . the Liberator

On July 5, 1811—or 35 years and one day after the American colonies rose against their English king—Venezuela rose against its Spanish rulers.

It was an audacious act, one that ignited 14 years of bloody warfare, overthrew Spanish overlordship of Latin America, and established six free republics: Venezuela, Colombia, Ecuador, Panama, Peru and Bolivia.

All six nations hail Simon Bolivar as their "Libertador."

Bolivar has been likened to Washington—both were well-born, of aristocratic and wealthy lineage. Both were destined to greatness; both proved to be outstanding military leaders, revolutionaries, founders of free governments. Both spurned the crown.

But whereas Washington died in the apogee of his fame, universally beloved and lamented, Bolivar died in exile and disillusion, a prophet without honor in his own country.

Simon Bolivar was born in Caracas, Venezuela, in 1783. He was orphaned at the age of 15, and was a widower at 20. He traveled in Europe, learned to admire, then despise Napoleon; he visited America, too, and never lost his admiration for George Washington.

The turning point in his life—he was to live but 47 years—occurred in his twenty-second year. On Mount Aventim, Rome, he swore to his tutor, Simon Rodriguez, he would devote his life to freeing Venezuela from Spain. Bolivar threw himself into the revolutionary movement of his native land, and participated in the declaration of independence of July 5, 1811.

During the following 14 years Bolivar participated in 200 battles in triumph or defeat, moving from one to another of the six countries he helped liberate. Again and again he was beaten, even disgraced, yet Bolivar's optimism and energy seemed boundless, and he bounced back again with a new victory.

Even when the outlook was particularly black in Veuezuela—in 1818—he could still write to the revolutionaries of Argentina of his expectation that Venezuela would one day invite that country to join in the "Unity of South America."

In 1819, the fortunes of Bolivar—and the independence of Latin America—took an upward swing. With a small army made up chiefly of a British-Irish foreign legion, he crossed the freezing Andes—a remarkable military feat for that day—and broke the hold of Spain at Boyaca. By the end of the year, the republic of Greater Colombia was created out of Venezuela, Nueva Granada and Ecuador, with Bolivar as president.

Greater Colombia was a partial achievement of Bolivar's most visionary ideal: a Pan-American Union.

By 1825, Spain was thoroughly licked, but Bolivar's troubles, instead of easing up with the peace, grew worse. While Bolivar was founding the Republic of Bolivia in upper Peru, his Greater Colombia was falling apart. In the ensuing series of civil wars, Bolivar found himself fighting his lieutenants and allies. At times he held power only by force, and was in effect a military dictator. Attempts were made on his life.

In hope of appeasing the rival factions, Bolivar gave up little by little all his honors and his power, winding up in exile, and dying of tuberculosis on December 17, 1830, in what is now Colombia. Twelve years after his death, Bolivar's remains were moved to his native Caracas, Venezuela, to be placed in the national pantheon.

Just before he died, Bolivar wrote:

"If my death will contribute to reconcile the parties and to consolidate the union, I shall go down to the tomb in peace."

their foes. Senator Theodore Francis Green of Rhode Island charged the anti-Truman people with aiming "to split the party irrevocably." He blamed the revolt on "a few dissidents and Republican propagandists." Senator Green is the Rhode Island colleague of Senator J. Howard McGrath, the Democratic national chairman.

Green called the President the candidate of the "plain people" and "thoughtful liberals" and he said his opposition came from "the far right and the far left."

James A. Farley, former Democratic national chairman, in New York, said he was "astounded that there are people who would question the integrity of General Eisenhower's written word by advancing the idea that he would accept a draft," after he has already made it clear that he would not do so.

Farley, a convention delegate, said he would vote for Truman.

On the Republican side, Senator Reed of Kansas said in an interview here:

"I am convinced that Ike is not a candidate and will not be drafted, as he told us Republicans." Reed observed that the time has come for the general to speak up and say he cannot be drafted.

A high Democratic source in Washington who preferred not to be named said he felt that if Eisenhower intends to declare himself unavailable, he should do so immediately, or it would be too late. to do so.

"He has too many people out on a limb already," this spokesman said. "If he waits any longer to withdraw, it will prove most embarrassing for his supporters."

Sparkman Lists His Reasons

Sparkman's 10 reasons, given on Ed Hart's forum, "Is Congress Doing Its Job?" ran like this:

1. "You are the only man mentioned for the Presidency who commands the support and respect of a sizable majority of all our people . . . The people have faith in you. You believe in the people.

"2. You have long been a supporter of the concept of cooperation among the nations of the world. With you as President, isolationism, the hard core of political reaction, could not hinder progress toward a peaceful world order as it did in the 1920's.

"3. In the field of international affairs, you have proven your ability to bargain successfully with civil and military leaders whose political philosophies are different from our own.

"4. The character of the Congress of the United States would most certainly be altered for the better with you as President.

"5. Inflation is the most destructive force abroad in our country today . . . The very political and economic groups responsible for these conditions will gain full power unless the progressive forces are able to rally around your leadership.

"6. . . . As a veteran yourself, you are able to understand the problems of the veterans . . . Under your leadership, we envisage enactment of legislation . . . designed to clear slums and build adequate houses in sufficient numbers for veterans and low-income groups.

"7. Under your leadership, general welfare legislation rather than special interest legislation would once again become the objective of our national lawmakers.

"8. The Presidency requires a man of great administrative ability. No American leader in our time has better demonstrated administrative talents than you. . . .

"9. For our national defense and internal prosperity, a further development of our public power potential is necessary . . . With you as President, no Congress would dare tamper with our national defense.

"10. . . . This Nation needs you as a leader so that there be no further delay in the enactment of much-needed social welfare legislation . . . With you as President of the United States, we envisage a return to common sense Government and not to the ill-famed "normalcy" of the 1920's."

Despite the disruption of political communications over the holiday weekend, the original sponsors of the anti-Truman caucus call, representing 17 States received recruits from eight other States yesterday. James Roosevelt, son of the late President, was one of the sponsors.

They included Senator Claude Pepper of Florida, Lester W. Loble, Montana chairman; Monroe Sweetland, Oregon national committeeman, and Thomas R. Mahoney, chairman of the Oregon delegation.

The 16 Oregon delegates were pledged to vote for President Truman by the State's primary and Associate Justice William O. Douglas of the Supreme Court won a majority of the write-in votes for the vice presidential nomination. The fact that the two Oregonians are going to the anti-Truman meeting was viewed as indicating they will not stay with their Truman commitment very long, and might violate it on the first ballot.

Sparkman Tells 'Ike' to Run

SPARKMAN SPEAKS—Senator John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.) (above) made a public statement to Gen. Dwight Eisenhower by radio yesterday. He listed 10 reasons why it is the general's "duty" to accept the Democratic presidential nomination

Pre-Convention Caucus May Attract 200

Omaha, Neb., July 4 (U.P.).—William Ritchie, Nebraska Democratic chairman, said tonight more than 200 delegates to the party's national convention would attend a pre-convention caucus at Philadelphia July 10.

Ritchie was one of 18 party bigwigs who signed a telegram Saturday urging a pre-convention meeting of delegates.

Ritchie who conferred recently with Eisenhower, said he was "certain" the general would accept the nomination.

Truman 'Sure' Of Nomination

President nor anyone at the White House has sought intervention by George E. Allen, one-time presidential confidante, to get a statement from General Eisenhower asserting his refusal to accept nomination.

"The boss has the nomination," he said. "This opposition will peter out once the caucus is held Saturday."

He referred to the caucus called for Philadelphia Saturday by a group headed by James D. Roosevelt, son of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Young Roosevelt sent a telegram to other delegates calling on them to pick the "ablest and strongest man available" for the nomination.

Roosevelt was reported to be planning to call on Mr. Truman to ask him to withdraw. The White House official said he had no knowledge of such a plan. He added that the President would receive Roosevelt, but "he doesn't have the California delegates—we know we have them."

Eisenhower Conditions On Nomination Reported

Los Angeles, July 4 (AP).—The Los Angelese Times said tonight that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has informed a committee he would accept the Democratic nomination only if President Truman placed his name before the national convention.

The article, from New York and written by the Times political editor, Kyle Palmer, said this information was received from a Democratic leader who said he was present when the committee approached Eisenhower. The Times quoted its unnamed informant as saying that unless such a condition for his nomination is met, Eisenhower will take himself out of the running before the convention begins balloting.

Charred Swedish Ship Towed Into Newport News

Newport News, Va., July 4 (U.P.). The charred, twisted Swedish ship Dagmar Salem, smoke still pouring from its hull, was towed into port tonight where Mrs. Sigurd Loedahl, wife of the captain, rushed to his arms.

Loedahl, the 39-year-old captain, had refused to leave the ship and stayed aboard to fight the fire on the trip here.

The Dagmar Salem caught fire early yesterday 30 miles off Cape May, N. J. The blaze was not completely out until the ship was well within the Virginia Capes.

Mrs. Loedahl and her two children, Annette, 7, and Clas Sigurd, 4, were brought to Newport News aboard the Coast Guard cutter Acushnet.

Taft Shunts GOP 'Voice' Job to Dewey

By The Associated Press

Long a leading spokesman for the GOP, Senator Taft of Ohio has checked that ticklish job to the presidential nominee, Thomas E. Dewey.

"The spotlight belongs to the winner—Tom Dewey," Taft said yesterday. "I'm stepping out of it."

For more than a year Taft, chairman of the Senate GOP Policy Committee with a powerful voice in important legislation has been widely regarded as the "voice of the GOP." When President Truman and other Democrats blasted at the Republican-controlled Congress, usually it was Taft who did the answering for his party.

"But Governor Dewey is the man to do the talking now," Taft said firmly.

Taft has returned to his home city of Cincinnati with Mrs. Taft for a brief visit. He will return here July 12 and then take off for a long vacation in Canada.

U. S. Foreign Aid Program Enters Its Fourth Month

America's vast foreign aid program entered its fourth month yesterday with 14 nations signed up for help and 3 others about to do so.

Still to sign are Switzerland, Portugal and Turkey. Also, the British-American and French zones of Germany are still in the process of having a final agreement worked out.

Already participating are: Austria, Belgium, China, Denmark, France, Greece, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Norway, Sweden and the United Kingdom. Some paper details remain in the cases of Belgium, France, Sweden and the United Kingdom.

The Economic Cooperation Administration and the State Department jointly issued the recapitulation yesterday.

Eisenhower Says Strength Lies in Unity

By the United Press

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, in a Fourth of July broadcast to veterans, said yesterday that the Nation's strength depends upon the unity of its people.

Eisenhower, president of Columbia University, spoke by transcription on the Veterans Administration's program, "The Veteran Wants to Know."

"When veterans speak of national strength they do not mean only tanks and planes and ships," Eisenhower said. "They mean the combined moral, intellectual, economic and military strength of our 140,000,000 people. The cornerstone of that strength is an essential unity among us. Without unified and concerted action no military unit, no industry, no nation can exert, either for good or evil, the full measure of its power."

Eisenhower said that some nations achieve unity through dictatorial control but that in the United States "basic unity must come from a common knowledge and understanding of the critical problems of our time."

Eisenhower told the veterans that they were "inescapably marked for leadership" and that their mass influence upon the future of this country would be greater than any other segment of our population.

"This fact is full of encouragement to all who look forward to a constantly increasing prosperity and happiness for America," he said. ". . . Our Nation could not be in better hands."

Capper Suggests Bill of Rights Study for July 4

Senator Capper (R., Kans.) suggested yesterday that Americans on July 4 read the Bill of Rights and "reexamine the state of the Nation."

It should be done, he suggested in a statement, with a view of determining "whether Americans will be better off under the republic, and that republic free as possible of foreign entanglements, or will Americans be better off under a strong central government with more and more power to control the individual from Washington."

It also should be with a view, he added, of determining whether United States citizens would fare better with the Government, "more and more committed to dependence on Europe for guidance in determining foreign policy."

Truman Job Offer Doesn't Lure Wene

Asbury Park, N. J., July 4 (U.P.). Elmer Wene, Democratic candidate for Governor of New Jersey and a former United States Senator, said today he would not accept an appointment as Undersecretary of Agriculture.

Communists Lose in Finland

Helsinki, July 4 (U.P.).—Finland's Communists have suffered the worst parliamentary election defeat in the nation's history, nearly complete returns showed today. They lost 13 of their 51 legislature seats and leftist Premier Mauno Pekkala was expected to be out of a job.

Political circles immediately speculated how Russia would react to the results. The outcome marked the first Communist election defeat in Soviet-dominated eastern Europe, and it appeared likely the prowestern Agrarian Party would become the leading political force in Finland.

The Popular Democratic Front, a Communist-led leftist coalition, had 51 of the 200 seats in the one-house legislature before the elections held Thursday and Friday. This was the largest representation held by any party. Now they have only 38 seats, with less than 100,000 votes still to be counted.

The anti-Communist Social Democrats and Agrarians both jumped from 48 to 53 seats. The Conservative Party won 30 seats, a gain of one. The Swedish Party kept its 14 seats. The Liberals retained six seats, a loss of three. The Swedish Liberal Party lost its one seat.

Informed sources said these standings may be final. Most of the ballots still uncounted will come in by mail.

The Finnish parliament will meet July 21 to form a new government.

Kekkonen Backed

The Agrarians, who won the largest popular vote, were expected to back Urho Kekkonen to replace Pekkala as premier.

Kekkonen, deputy speaker of parliament and a member of the board of the Bank of Finland, belongs to the Centrist Agrarian Party and is a close friend of President Juho Paasikivi.

Holy Land Plan Offered

ask a review of immigration policy.

Bernadotte in submitting these proposals to Jews and Arabs asked for counterproposals.

Plans to Prevent Fighting

But in notifying the U. N. Security Council of his proposals, Bernadotte made it plain he was determined to prevent a renewal of fighting when the present four-week truce expires at 2 a. m. (EDT) Friday.

He said that if, after all negotiations, either side or both rejected his proposals as a basis for discussion:

"I shall promptly report the circumstances fully to the Security Council and shall feel free to submit such conclusions to the Security Council as I may consider appropriate."

This was a threat to accuse either side which might refuse to negotiate of sabotaging his peace efforts.

Separate States Not Proposed

Bernadotte did not propose that the Jewish and Arab areas of Palestine be formed into separate states, with Trans-Jordan taking over the Arab part.

He carefully avoided the use of the word state in proposing that Palestine, divided into Jewish and Arab areas, be made into "a union comprising two members, one Arab and one Jewish."

The purposes of the union, he said, would be to "promote common economic interests, to operate and maintain common services, including customs and excise, to undertake development projects and to coordinate foreign policy and measures for common defense."

He said the functions of the union might be exercised through a central council and other bodies and that, "subject to the provisions of the instrument of union, each member of the union may exercise full control over its own affairs including foreign relations.

Both Jews and Arabs to whom the peace plan was submitted have made it plain that they are dissatisfied, and dispatches from Tel Aviv, Cairo and other capitals speak of rejection.

But in "rejecting" the original proposal, both sides are to offer counter-proposals. The Arabs already have made theirs and Bernadotte conferred on them in Cairo today with Egyptian Premier Mahmoud Fahmy el Nokrashy Pasha.

Flies Back to Rhodes

Bernadotte flew back to Rhodes, his truce headquarters, late today. On his arrival, he said that "the door is still open for further discussions" and that he is awaiting the reply from the Jews.

Bernadotte's proposals were made public here after he submitted them to the Security Council.

In a covering letter he said he submitted his proposals to the Arabs and Jews in three separate papers.

The first defined Bernadotte's peace-seeking mandate from the U. N. It said the truce had brought a calmer atmosphere in Palestine and that both sides had been cooperative, with the result that he now had "a very clear impression" of their positions.

"Despite the present conflict, there is a common denominator in Palestine which, happily, is acceptable to and affirmed by both sides," this paper said. "This is the recognition of the necessity for peaceful relations between Arabs and Jews in Palestine and the principle of economic unity."

The second paper outlined Bernadotte's idea of an economic union.

Territorial Proposals

The third, an annex, gave his six-point territorial proposals.

A United Press Rhodes dispatch said that Bernadotte envisaged a situation in which the future Arab area, including Trans-Jordan, would number 1,600,000 people, 1,200,000 in Palestine and 400,000 in Trans-Jordan. The Jewish part would number 900,000 including the 700,000 now in Palestine and the 200,000 displaced persons who would be sent to the Holy Land in the next two years.

Dr. Ralph Bunche of Bernadotte's staff said in Cairo that the Arabs had not closed the door for discussion and that peace efforts would continue.

Concessions to Arabs

The Arabs have said they never would recognize Israel as a separate state. Bernadotte's peace plan did not specify it as a separate state. But it has always been hinted that the Arabs in the end would settle for one, with King Abdullah taking over Arab areas.

The Jews have insisted first on a separate state, secondly on unlimited immigration, third on getting possession of Jerusalem.

As regard Bernadotte's territorial proposals the Negev, colonized by Jews, was awarded them in the U. N. partition scheme. But the Egyptian army has cut it off. Western Galilee was awarded the Arabs, but the Israelis have occupied it. Jerusalem was to be put under international control. Haifa, Palestine's best port, was given to the Jews. Jaffa was to be a separate enclave in Jewish territory.

The Arabs are thus given important concessions under Bernadotte's plan.

Bernadotte's Suggestions

mediator is to use his good offices to "promote a peaceful adjustment of the future situation of Palestine."

2. It follows that my prime objective as mediator is to determine on the basis of the fullest exploration, whether there is any possibility of reconciling, by peaceful means, the divergent and conflicting views and positions of the two sides.

3. The cooperative attitude manifested thus far by both sides has made possible the truce which began on June 11. This truce has brought a calmer atmosphere, more favorable to the task of mediation entrusted to me by the General Assembly. In this improved atmosphere I have talked with the representatives of both sides and have obtained a very clear impression of their positions on the question of the future of Palestine. I have also profited from the information afforded by the technical consultants whom each side has designated in response to my request.

4. The basic issues arising from the opposing parties relate to partition, the establishment of a Jewish state, and Jewish immigration.

5. I have thoroughly studied, weighed and appraised the positions taken by the two parties. I interpret my role as mediator not as one involving the handing down of decisions on the future of Palestine, but as one of offering suggestions on the basis of which further discussions might take place, and possibly counter-suggestions be put forth looking towards a peaceful settlement of this difficult problem. My suggestions at this stage, then, must clearly be of such nature as to provide a reasonable framework of reference within which the two parties may find it possible to continue their consultations with me towards the end of a peaceful adjustment.

6. My analysis has taken into count the equities involved, and the aspirations, fears, and motivations of the parties. It has also taken account of the realities of the existing situation. It has convinced me that on grounds of equity, as well as on practical grounds, it is impossible for me as mediator to call upon either party to surrender completely its position. In the light of this analysis I see a possibility of an adjustment which would give adequate reassurance to both parties as regards the vital factors in their respective positions. But the realization of this possibility depends upon the willingness of the parties to explore all avenues for a peaceful adjustment and their readiness not to resume armed comflict as a means of settling their differences.

7. Despite the present conflict, there is a common denominator in Palestine which, happily is acceptable to and affirmed by both sides. This is the recognition of the necessity for peaceful relations between Arabs and Jews in Palestine and the principle of economic unity.

8. It is with this common denominator especially in mind that I put forth the accompanying suggestions in outline as a basis for discussion. These suggestions, I must emphasize, are submitted with no intimation of preciseness or finality. They are designed solely to explore the possible bases for further discussions and mediation, and to elicit from the parties their reactions and further views. Moreover, any plans which might result from these suggestions could be workable only if voluntarily accepted and applied. There can be no question of their imposition.

9. I should make perfectly clear my intentions as regards future procedure. If it develops that the suggestions herewith presented, or other suggestions subsequently presented which may arise from the reactions to those now put forth, provide a basis for discussion, I will carry on with the discussions as long as may prove necessary and fruitful. If, however, these or subsequent suggestions, if any should emerge, are rejected as a basis for discussion, which I earnestly hope will not occur, I shall promptly report the circumstances fully to the Security Council and shall feel free to submit such conclusions to the Security Council as I may consider appropriate.

COUNT FOLKE BERNADOTTE,
United Nations Mediator on Palestine.
Rhodes, Greece, June 27, 1948.

Part II, suggestions presented by the mediator on Palestine.

THE mediator advanced the following suggestions as a possible basis for discussion:

1. That, subject to the willingness of the directly interested parties to consider such an arrangement, Palestine, as defined in the original mandate entrusted to the United Kingdom in 1922, that is including Trans-Jordan, might form a union comprising two members, one Arab and one Jewish.

2. That the boundaries of the two members be determined in the first instance by negotiation with the assistance of the mediator and on the basis of suggestions to be made by him. When agreement is reached on the main outlines of the boundaries they will be definitely fixed by a boundaries commission.

3. That the purpose and function of the union should be to promote common economic interests, to operate and maintain common services, including customs and excise, to undertake development projects and to coordinate foreign policy and measures for common defense.

4. That the functions and authority of the union might be exercised through a central council and such other organs as the members of the union may determine.

5. That, subject to the provisions of the instrument of union, each member of the union may exercise full control over its own affairs, including its foreign relations.

6. Immigration within its own borders should be within the competence of each member, provided that following a period of two years from the establishment of the union, either member would be entitled to request the council of the union to review the immigration policy of the other member and to render a ruling thereon in terms of the common interests of the union. In the event of the inability of the council to reach a decision on the matter, the issue could be referred by either member to the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations whose decision, taking into account the principle of economic absortive capacity, would be binding on the member whose policy is at issue.

7. That religious and minority rights be fully protected by each member of the union and guaranteed by the United Nations.

8. That holy places, religious buildings and sites be preserved and that existing rights in respect of the same be fully guaranteed by each member of the union.

9. That recognition be accorded to the right of residents of Palestine who, because of conditions created by the conflict there, have left their normal places of abode, to return to their homes without restriction and to regain possession of their property.

COUNT FOLKE BERNADOTTE.
United Nations Mediator of Palestine, Rhodes, Greece,
27 June, 1948.

Part III, annex to the suggestions: territorial matters.

With regard to paragraph two of the suggestions it is considered that certain territorial arrangements might be worthy of consideration. These might be along the following lines:

1. Inclusion of the whole or part of the Negev in Arab territory.

2. Inclusion of the whole or part of western Galilee in Jewish territory.

3. Inclusion of the City of Jerusalem in Arab territory, with municipal autonomy for the Jewish community and special arrangements for the protection of the holy places.

4. Consideration of the status of Jaffa.

5. Establishment of a free port at Haifa, the area of the free port to include the refineries and terminals.

6. Establishment of a free airport at Lydda.

United Nations Mediator of Palestine, Rhodes, Greece,
27 June 1948.

U. N. Police Control Urged In Scopus Area of Holy City

Tel Aviv, July 3 (NYHT).—While protecting Palestine's truce, the United Nations Supervisory Commission has presented to Arabs and Jews an ambitious scheme to demilitarize part of Jerusalem with the first armed international police force yet created, it was learned today.

Mount Scopus, the biblical height in northern Jerusalem, has been selected for the initial experiment with U. N. police chosen on a volunteer basis internationally. Both Arabs and Jews have agreed in principle to demilitarization of Scopus and to U. N. control.

The plan is entirely separate from the four-week cease-fire pact. It would give the U. N. a permanent foothold in the Holy City, a foothold which Count Folke Bernadotte, chief truce mediator, frankly hopes to expand over the entire city.

Representatives of the Arab Legion and the Israeli Foreign Office have indicated their willingness to isolate Scopus from the Jerusalem battle, should it flare again. All Haganah troops at the American-built Hadassah Hospital and the Hebrew University would be withdrawn, and Jews would be permitted to evacuate medical supplies plus hospital and university personnel.

The Arab Legion would guard the perimeter of Scopus but would permit passage of U. N. supplies and refrain from further shelling of the Jewish institutions, which were heavily damaged by artillery before the truce. U. N. observers would remain in residence atop Scopus.

Rows of Communists, Antis Deadlock Jewish Congress

Montreux, Switzerland, July 4 (AP).—Disputes between Communist and anti-Communist delegates deadlocked tonight the political committee of the World Jewish Congress.

After day-long discussions the committee finally agreed on several specific resolutions for submission to a plenary session. The committee, however, was still deadlocked between East and West tonight over a resolution defining the basic principles of Jewish policy.

Earlier, the committee decisively rejected a proposal by several Polish, American and French delegates that the Congress should call for a world-wide boycott of Arab goods.

The committee reached agreement on resolutions opposing any return to Germany of areas now claimed by Poland and demanding punishment of war criminals, legislation against the propogation of race hatred and payment of reparations to the Jews by Germany.

The proposal to boycott Arab goods was rejected after most delegates had pointed out that it might stiffen the present attitude of Arab governments.

Israel Holds Peter Bergson

Tel Aviv, Israel, July 4 (AP).—The Israeli government announced tonight that Peter Bergson, co-president of the American League of Free Palestine, is being held on a charge of "armed resistance to the Israeli army and incitement to desertion following the Altalena incident."

The first official announcement that Bergson was under arrest followed by several hours a statement by Conrad Bercovici, the league's other co-president, who expressed fear Bergson was dead.

The Altalena incident referred to in the charge occurred recently, when Irgun Zvai Leumi disembarked several hundred fighters on the Palestine coast from the LST Altalena. Government troops defeated the Irgunists in a subsequent battle. The government said it was necessary to fight the Irgunists because they were violating the United Nations Palestine truce.

ing of the military commanders, western officials said today that the factor which will determine whether Russians will stick to their position in the Berlin crisis undoubtedly will be the effectiveness of counter-pressure from the west. The military commanders pointed out that even in yesterday's meeting Marshal Sokolovsky left the way open for backing down by continuing to give "rail repairs" as the reason for stopping rail traffic.

Meanwhile the Americans and British continued to step up their aerial freight service, flying hundreds of loads of food into Berlin. The British announced they will increase their tonnage substantially Monday by starting a shuttle service between Hamburg and Berlin with 10 giant Sunderland flying boats. They will land in Berlin on a lake called the Wannsee.

Western Powers Plan To Make Mark Scarce

Berlin, July 4 (U.P.).—The Western Allies embarked today on a campaign aimed at making their new Deutschmark scare, and therefore valuable, in the three non-Russian sectors of Berlin.

In a decree published late last night, the three Western powers announced that Germans in the Western sectors will receive only 25 per cent of their salaries in Deutschemarks. The other three-fourths will be paid in the marks issued by Soviet Russia.

Some observers believed the limited introduction of the new Allied currency was intended to provide a basis for negotiations toward a lifting of the Russian hunger blockade of Berlin. The Russians have insisted all along that only a single kind of money—their own—should be used in Berlin.

Late today, Gen. Lucius D. Clay's office denied reports which said the Russians had protested alleged Western violations of the air corridors into Berlin. The office of the American military governor said no protests had been received.

Bevin Says Soviet Starving Innocent

Symondham, England, July 4 (AP). British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin charged today that Russia is starving innocent people to force the Western powers from Berlin.

"We will not surrender it," he declared at a Labor Party rally of some 5000 persons. Bevin declared that the 16-day Russian blockade of western Berlin was making innocent persons suffer.

"We are always ready to discuss Berlin if they (the Russians) are willing to discuss it, and I am not unhopeful that sanity will prevail."

Bevin will report to a special cabinet meeting Monday to discuss developments in the Berlin crisis.

40 Sent to Start Legation For Siam's Total 10 Russians

By Spencer Davis

Manila, July 4 (AP).—A new base for Communist activity in southeast Asia appears to be taking shape in Bangkok, capital of Siam.

This is the interpretation most qualified observers put on the arrival of a large Russian delegation of more than 40 persons to establish Russia's first legation in Siam.

"There are not more than 10 Soviet citizens in all Siam." A Siamese official told this correspondent, who has just returned to Manila from Bangkok. "They are sure to have at least four diplomats to represent each citizen!"

The Russians, headed by Minister Serge Niemchina, have kept to themselves in one of Bangkok's leading hotels.

However, they have started an "information service" and distributed their first bulletin to all Bangkok papers on June 22, in time to congratulate the people of Siam on the anniversary of the 1932 revolution.

The situation has not escaped the attention of Western diplomats. As a matter of fact, the Soviet minister presented his credentials May 3, and on that day the United States formally notified Siam of recognition of the government of Premier Pibul Songgram.

"The game Moscow is playing is not just a European game or a China game," U. S. Ambassador Edwin F. Stanton told this correspondent last week.

"The situation in Malaya (scene of disorders attributed to Communists) has served to focus attention on this part of the world.

"If all southeast Asia becomes a solid, hostile Communist bloc, it will be a cause of great concern to all the world."

Stanton is going to Washington this week to report, after having presided over a conference of American foreign service officers from the Philippines, Burma, India, Indonesia, Malaya, China and Indochina.

The other passengers included one Swiss, one Norwegian, and at least four Swedes, the airline said. The remainder of the passengers probably were Danes, it said.

The RAF plane had been circling the airport for about an hour, waiting for a rift in low clouds.

One man was taken alive from the York but died within a few minutes.

The passengers an dcrew members in the RAF plane were jammed forward in the nose and burned beyond recognition, a fireman said.

Pieces of the two planes were scattered over a radius of 2 miles.

Blow To Morale

The inadequacy of the salary increases granted to Federal employes is only one count in President Truman's scathing indictment of the Federal pay-raise bill that he has reluctantly signed, acting, no doubt, on the principle that half a loaf is better than nothing at all. Much more serious is the demoralizing effect of giving flat increases to all employes covered by the Classification Act. As a result, differences between upper and lower pay grades, already narrowed by increases given in 1945 and 1946 will be further decreased. "The effect of this," the President points out, "is to reduce seriously the opportunity for salary advancement which should go with increased responsibility." Even worse is the blow dealt to morale by the failure of Congress to raise salaries of officials whose remuneration is fixed by Congress. Consequently, members of many boards and commissions and certain agency heads at the $10,000 level will receive lower salaries than some of their subordinates who receive the $330 pay increase. The President rightly denounces such a "violation of the principles of sound management" as "ridiculous."

It will certainly be hard to maintain discipline under such topsy-turvy conditions. Competent administrators will be severely handicapped, and their natural resentment at such unjust treatment will tend to accelerate the present exodus of competent men from the Government service. The exclusion of District employes from the benefits of the act is also inexcusable, as is the preferred treatment of postal employes, given a $450 pay increase, no doubt because they are strongly organized and could put more pressure on Congress.

The only good thing to be said about the measure is that it is so bad as to make revisions inevitable. The Eighty-first Congress can hardly ignore the impossible situation created by the hasty and irresponsible action of the Eightieth Congress. The way to remedy that situation is to authorize a thoroughgoing revision of salary scales in the classified services, as urged by the President, raise the salaries of top-ranking officials, and extend the benefits of increases to all District and other Federal employes who have been unjustly denied pay increases.

That 1948 Surplus

In spite of tax cuts retroactive to January, the Treasury ended the fiscal year 1948 with a surplus of 8.4 billion dollars—more than seven times the amount of the largest previous recorded net surplus. On paper this surplus has been cut to 5.4 billion, because Congress directed the Treasury to charge three billion dollars of 1949 European recovery expenditures against 1948 revenues. By this kind of fiscal sleight-of-hand, as the President calls it, the effect of tax reduction on the budget of the current fiscal year, 1949, will be camouflaged. A budget surplus, if there should be one, would appear to be larger than the real surplus, while a possible deficit might be concealed from uncritical eyes. But such juggling with budget figures will not deceive the initiated or increase by a single dollar the actual amount of the surpluses available for debt retirement during the two fiscal years 1948 and 1949.

The record-breaking size of the 1948 surplus is due primarily to the fact that national income has been rising rapidly under the stimulus of inflation, and tax revenues have accordingly exceeded expectations. In January, 1947, for example, the President estimated receipts for the fiscal year 1948 at from 38 to 39 billion dollars. The revised estimate of last January was 45.2 billion dollars and actual receipts amounted to 44.7 billion dollars.

Expenditures for 1948, on the other hand, were 1.4 billion below the revised estimates contained in the President's January budget message, owing to a combination of economy and delayed foreign-aid spending. However, the final total of 36.3 billion dollars was far above the level at which congressional budget-pruners were aiming little more than a year ago. Moreover, the cost of Government is going up. Although it is too soon to arrive at reliable estimates of expenditures for the current fiscal year, savings effected by cuts in 1949 appropriations, as reported in the July letter of the National City Bank, are unofficially estimated at 2.8 billion dollars. As Congress has approved additional authorizations for military spending, Government salary increases, and other outlays not included in the President's January expenditure estimate of 39.7 billion dollars, it is doubtful whether actual expenditures can be held down to that level this year.

Since the Tax Reduction Act will result in heavy losses of revenue, it is also a debatable question whether 1949 revenues will suffice to yield a modest surplus (ignoring, of course, that three billion dollar shift) or put the Government "in the red" again. In any case, there is slight reason to anticipate a surplus for the current fiscal year that would justify further substantial tax reductions, unless Congress is prepared to risk a return to deficit financing and all it implies in the way of stimulated inflation. Nor, for that matter, is there any ground for hoping that the Treasury will be in a position to apply checks to inflation by using surplus funds to retire substantial amounts of bank-held Government securities, as it did during the fiscal year just closed.

The Problem Of Power

In a discussion some weeks ago of James Burnham's book, The Struggle for the World, a writer in the Times Literary Supplement (London) observed that theories of foreign policy fall into two categories. One of these he called the "rationalistic and scientific"; the other "historical and empirical." The first is based on an assumption that "all political phenomena have definable and removable causes." The second is based on historical experience which teaches that "the character and extent of any country's ambitions are determined by infinitely complex and constantly changing interplay of factors," and that foreign policies are often decided by pure accident or by the caprices of human nature.

Accordingly, the first school seeks to find an answer to the problem of peace in some universally applicable formula. In other words, it rests on a faith that peace can be achieved by methods analogous to those of research laboratories. A contemporary example is the reasoning which proceeds from the premise that Soviet Russia is determined upon a program of world domination to the conclusion that the United States must prevent this by dominating the world instead, which of course, is Mr. Burnham's notion.

The weakness in such views, observed the reviewer, is the oversimplification that results from an unwillingness to recognize the unpredictable nature of power. Power means something infinitely more complex than the ostensible instruments of coercion in the hands of governments. Power, even in the crudest sense of the word, requires something more than the existence of armies and the possession of industries. The loyalty of armies and the productivity of industries are dependent in the last analysis on the mental attitudes of soldiers and workers. "Dictators," said the reviewer, "never make the mistake of underrating the importance of opinion, and it is an illuminating fact that their most impressive contribution to the technique of government has been the science of public suggestion."

But the uniformity of opinion which is essential to the power of dictators is also impossible without power. In other words, a policy based wholly on power requires not only a consistent ideology, but also an "unfailing readiness to back protests with military action." Both are impossible in the case of countries whose tradition permits "the free competition of political ideas"; hence it is "a fatal mistake to which contemporary pamphleteers are peculiarly liable to suppose that the best strategy is to compete in the same market as the enemy." Interestingly enough, the same point was made not long ago by the former Secretary of State, Mr. Byrnes, in a speech at Philadelphia. Mr. Byrnes said he thought it an unhappy mistake to refer to American foreign policy as the "containment of Soviet Russia." That, he observed, "depreciates the high purpose of our policy," and fails to distinguish it from "what appears to be the foreign policy of the Soviet Union, namely, the containment of the United States of America."

In short, the United States, like Great Britain and the western European countries, lacks the unanimity of political opinion that is necessary to a program of world domination. Similarly, any American policy must, as the Times reviewer points out, take account of the "irrational chauvinism in western Europe which prefers the risk of extinction by an enemy to peaceful absorption by an understanding ally."

Price Increases

The United States Steel Corp. has reopened wage negotiations with the steel workers after having refused to consider a third round of wage increases last April. Since then a great deal has happened; wages have advanced in other industries, and substantial increases have been secured by the coal miners. Although U. S. Steel and other owners of so-called captive coal mines have refused to sign the Lewis contract because of the union-shop clause, it is safe to conclude that when the legal tangles resulting from that section of the agreement have been unraveled, the workers in the captive mines will get their wage increases. To raise the wages of one group of employes while denying increases to others would put any company in an untenable position. Consequently, the steel workers have good reason to expect that their employers will back down and give them a raise.

With higher prices for coal in prospect as a result of wage increases and higher steel wages as a result of increased miners' wages, we must expect higher steel prices for steel-consuming industries, and all those increases will be reflected in the prices paid for the products of the industry. The heads of various steel companies stated last spring when they were under the fire of congressional critics for raising steel prices that prices would have to be advanced again if wages increased. Thereafter U. S. Steel took the lead in a campaign to resist wage increases and proceeded to reduce the prices of many of its products as a means of fighting inflation. It now looks as if that anti-inflation crusade has ended in defeat. But it will be the general public, not the producers of steel, that will feel the pinch of higher production costs, for they will be reflected in higher prices.

Faith In Freedom

Heavenly days! An assistant superintendent of schools in Montgomery County, E. M. Douglass, has had the temerity to assert that American high school students are unlikely to be bowled over by the first puff of Communist propaganda. What a refreshing, old-fashioned outlook! Mr. Douglass appears to believe not only that there is a considerable amount of vitality in American institutions, but also that young Americans will be devoted to these institutions even if they should happen to hear how things are done in contemporary Russia. What evoked this extraordinary profession of faith on Mr. Douglass' part was a recent complaint to the county commissioners by Franklin T. Miles, a Chevy Chase attorney, that Mrs. Aleksandra Lewis was permitted to make a "pro-Soviet" talk before students of Montgomery Blair High School a little more than a year ago. Here is what Mr. Douglass said:

> I feel there is no group of Montgomery County citizens more thoroughly sold on the American way of life than our senior high school pupils. I wouldn't have any fear about an avowed Communist speaking to high school seniors, as they are going to come in contact with Communist propaganda in real life anyway. The best way to teach them to recognize it is propaganda is to bring it out in the light of day and not have it come to them in a hidden form. If high school seniors cannot be exposed to avowed Communists without losing faith in American ideals, our educational program and American system are both a flop.

This is an attitude which runs, of course, quite counter to the prevailing cotton-wool or asbestos curtain theory of dealing with alien ideas. Mr. Miles is by no means alone in his apparent feeling that a few words from Mrs. Lewis or any other Soviet apologist would suffice to undermine all that American youngsters have learned in their homes, their churches, their schools, their sports and their contacts with fellow Americans, and that the only way to keep them from falling into the bosom of the Kremlin is to pretend that nothing resembling the Soviet Union actually exists.

Mr. Douglass, on the other hand, seems to have succumbed to the Holmesian doctrine that the best test of truth "is the power of thought to get itself accepted in the competition of the market." And apparently he has no doubt whatever that in this competition, American ideas will prove superior to Soviet ideas, that young people brought up in the freedom of the American system will prefer it to the doctrinaire rigidity and repression of the Soviet system. Perhaps he is quite right. Perhaps, after all, American ideas are quite capable of withstanding such a test.

Heart Institute

Many examples can be adduced to show that there is no systematic allotment of public and private medical research expenditures according to the importance of various diseases. Tuberculosis, for instance, rightly receives a great deal of attention; but as a killer tuberculosis has a relatively minor rank. Perhaps the most startling example of disproportionate expenditures is in the small funds devoted to studies of heart disease. Heart and circulatory ailments account for 42 per cent of all deaths in the United States. Yet a total of less than 3 million dollars is spent annually by the Government, insurance companies and other private agencies in research on this destroyer. Only 638 doctors specialize exclusively in heart disease, and only 1100 hospital beds are available specifically for cardiac patients and convalescents.

Comparisons, to be sure, can be misleading. The far greater number of tuberculosis beds can be explained by the fact that tuberculosis is highly contagious, while heart disease is not. Moreover, heart complications can result from many causes, including other diseases. Many deaths ascribed broadly to heart disease can be laid more accurately at the door of other primary afflictions. This consideration makes difficult any narrow attack on heart disease alone.

Nevertheless, it is apparent that heart ailments are not now receiving the concentrated study they deserve. A number of measures to provide a broader approach was considered in Congress, and a bill was passed to establish in the Public Health Service a National Heart Institute similar to that now operating in the field of cancer, with an appropriation of $500,000. This agency will promote and coordinate research, make grants in aid, establish fellowships and make available information on prevention of heart diseases and care for their victims. Such a move seems to us a sensible step forward. While the practical feasibility of a 100-million dollar initial attack may be doubted, there can be no question that the control and cure of heart disease now is a large gap in public health endeavors.

DESTINATION PEACE

More dexterous with social sextants now,
Let us seek brighter stars to fix on charts,
Triangulate positions pointing how
To trace a truer course from doubtful starts.
The careless compass points and latitudes
That we have flown, computed from the past,
And all the false and ancient longitudes
Must be redrawn, made errorless at last.

Storms and the rampart clouds and cyclone hate
May spear our headings and may blind our sight,
And nagging cross-winds may predominate
To veer us constantly, but in our flight
No weak and shallow circumnavigation
Must pilot us again toward devastation.

"Coal Eclipse"

I thought the writer of your June 30 editorial, "Coal Eclipse," might like to know, for future reference, that the Bituminous Coal Institute, and several Eastern railroads, I believe nine, joined some time ago in a research program to develop a coal dust burning turbine locomotive. The project for a year or more has been located at Johns Hopkins. I think it has now moved to one of the big locomotive works.

They have spent about three million dollars, have completed the engine and will be rail testing it soon. If this machine comes anywhere near the designers' expectation, it will give the new diesel just as hard a race as the diesel has given steam. Combustion of coal powder makes expanding heat and gas which drives a turbine not unlike the airplane turbojet.

I happened to have been writing on this subject and thought you would like to know what goes. The diesel men do not mean life of the locomotive when they say it stays on the road longer. They mean it runs longer between servicings and fuelings. READER.

President Gallegos

I wish to congratulate you upon your excellent editorial, "Venezuelan Guest" concerning the visit of President Romulo Gallegos to this country.

The paragraph, "His accession to office in February of this year was as important to the United States as well as to Venzuela, for a popular regime dedicated to orderly change is the most effective answer to the current discord that is overflowing in other parts of Latin America," is masterful.

"Popular regime dedicated to orderly change"—I do not remember having ever read or heard a formula for the salvation of the Latin-American peoples as concise and wise as the one expressed by you in these six simple words. You have just pointed out to us Latin Americans the only road which can lead us to peace, stability and progress.

The government of Gen. Isaias Medina Angarita was overthrown in October, 1946. A revolutionary government junta, presided over by Romulo Betancourt, also a civilian and man of letters, took charge of the government. Elections—admirable elections!—were held on December 15, 1947, and by them Romulo Gallegos was chosen as President by a great majority. He took the oath of office on February 15, 1948.

Permit me to quote the following words from the great editorial published by the New York Times on December 20, entitled "Pen vs. Sword" commenting on his election: . . . they have elected as President of their country not another tough-fibered, despotically inclined general but a civilian, and, what is more, a literary civilian, a novelist of high repute, a warrior of the pen—Senor Romulo Gallegos—one of whose novels, "Dona Barbara," has made him a leader in the contemporary literature of his native land and brought him renown wherever Spanish is spoken. In his election the voice of Venezuelan voters wished to proclaim to the world that, at long last, in Venezuela, the sword is no longer mightier than the pen.

On December 22 the column of the same newspaper, "Topics of the Times" (then in charge of the late brilliant Simeon Strunsky), was entirely devoted to President-elect Romulo Gallegos and his famous book mentioned above and it ended with these words: "If Senor Gallegos is one half as good a President as he is a novelist Venezuela is a lucky land."

It is now evident, in my humble opinion, that Senor Gallegos is excelling also as President of his country. PERSIO C. FRANCO.

Misplaced Courtesy

On June 26 a letter appeared by Mrs. P. J., who identifies herself as the foreign-born wife of an American citizen. Someone is alleged to have pushed her aside in a grocery store and is alleged to have spoken rudely to her. Mrs. P. J. claims that the offender called her "The stink of the ocean."

Now in my opinion "stink of the ocean" is not an American invective. I do not believe it was an American citizen who offended her. This phrase has the distinct sound of some colorful foreign invective translated into English.

To Mrs. P. J. I would like to say that it has been my experience that many foreigners are very rude to native Americans. I see a great many of them in the neighborhood where I live. They travel in droves and give way to no man or woman either and unless you watch yourself you will find yourself in the gutter.

Needless to say, I stand my ground and they have to walk around me. I get the most insulted glances. No doubt but that they think me very rude. I can see no reason for allowing myself to be completely swept aside in the name of courtesy.

I wish to compliment, through your columns, the especially fine service given to me by the Veterans' Service Center, 1400 Pennsylvania ave. nw.

It appears that this agency is in a position to help veterans with problems for which other agencies do not have the proper facilities or jurisdiction. Civil Rights Questions

There are several questions concerning this so-called and to my mind falsely called "civil rights program" which you or some of your readers may be able to answer.

Is a civil right or civil liberty one that may not be infringed by the Government or by any official, either elected or appointed, or by any employe of the Government?

Does the establishment of a civil right or liberty therefore require a restriction or limitation on the power of the Government by a constitutional process?

Do the amendments constituting the original Bill of Rights all involve a limitation of the power of the Government and of its agents?

Does the so-called "civil rights program" involve an extension of the powers and authorities of the Federal Government, which extensions may be entirely unnecessary or even unconstitutional usurpations of power?

Does an extension of the powers of the Federal Government lead us away from civil rights and toward the successive steps of benevolent despotism, which would be benevolent only to some people, then to despotism and then to tyranny.

Since the complexities of the office of the Presidency require that some trust be placed in advisers, would it be desirable that the advisers be sound, analytical-minded men who can penetrate the smoke screen of propaganda?

Would it be desirable that more people read more of the philosophy of that good Scot, Thomas Carlyle, in order to be warned against false labels?

"Superseniority"

In your newspaper of June 30 there is an editorial which criticizes and opposes the superseniority and preference rights that are given veterans in Government jobs. It is apparent that your newspaper has taken sides with the other "patriotic" Americans who are opposed to the few job-rights that have been granted the men and women who gave so much for the defense and protection of this country.

Superseniority and preference rights were given veterans as a kind of reward to help them readjust themselves to civilian life and to provide them with some measure of economic security. The 5 or 10 preference points allowed veterans in receiving and holding Federal jobs are a meager reward when you consider what a veteran had to go through and endure to earn it.

To have preference rights in Federal employment, the veteran had to spend years away from his wife and children. In many instances, he had to face enemy guns that vomited sudden death and destruction. The men who have been given superseniority are the men who had to storm the beaches at Iwo Jima in the face of murderous enemy fire, and who flew bombing missions through skies that were full of death from bursting shells.

If any special rights and privileges are due any class of citizens in this country, I feel that the veterans are entitled to them. In veteran hospitals there are a lot of good Americans who lost a leg, an eye, a foot, part of their face, a hand or an arm on some battle-front. I believe that every real and democratic American will agree that these men are entitled to superseniority and every other right that can be given them. The best way to eliminate veteran preference is to stop fighting unnecessary wars.

We went and did the dirty work, and now everybody is complaining that too many of us are holding Government jobs. I didn't hear any complaints when there were 12 million of us holding jobs in the Army, Navy and Marine Corps. Everybody is complaining now that superseniority will impair the efficiency of the Government because it will keep too many incompetent veterans in Government jobs. Well, I met a lot of incompetent and inefficient men while I was in the Navy, but nobody advocated or suggested that they be discharged and sent home to improve the efficiency of the Navy.

The veterans are a group of citizens who have given their full measure of devotion to this country. It isn't right to be always picking on them. Leave the veteran alone! If any attempt is made to reduce the few rights that are now enjoyed by veterans, it may cause them to organize themselves into a pressure group. I would regret to see the day that happened.

God And Einstein

SPACE AND SPIRIT, by Sir Edmund Whittaker, F. R. S. (The Henry Regnery Co., $2.50.)

Si Dieu ne existait pas goes the much quoted line by Voltaire, il faudrait l'inventer. It is a way of saying that the existence of God had been proved; and the proof accepted by Voltaire and the other pious deists of the Enlightenment was that the beautiful and beneficent mechanical universe they inhabited must have needed some Divine Mechanic to assemble the parts and to give the machinery its original impulsion, after which perhaps, so perfect was the design of the cosmic apparatus, there was no further need of His services. Yet, barely a generation after Voltaire's death the astronomer La-Place demonstrated that even the clockwork cosmos could do without a Clockmaker. But of course there are various other proofs of God, and it is with the historical and scientific vicissitudes of some of them that Sir Edmund Whittaker is concerned. Sir Edmund is a celebrated mathematician of the University of Edinburgh and the lectures which comprise this book were given by him two years ago at Trinity College in Dublin.

Among the more famous proofs is the ontological argument set forth in the Proslogion of St. Anselm of Canterbury and repeated, almost in detail, in Descartes' Essay on Method. It goes something like this: (1) It is possible to conceive a Being than which there can be nothing more perfect. (2) That which does not exist is less perfect than that which exists. (3) Therefore God exists. The standard objection to this argument is that it is pure intellection, a kind of logical tour de force having no relation to the objective universe. Of an entirely different order are the five proofs of God advanced by St. Thomas, based on what he deemed to be natural evidences. The most familiar of these arguments is that of the Unmoved Mover, adapted from Aristotle. Everything in nature is acted upon by something else, but since the universe is finite, an infinity of motion is impossible. The second or etiological argument is a variant of the first. Nothing in nature is its own cause, but the sequence of efficient causes must somewhere end with that which causes but is not caused. The third or cosmological argument was adapted from Moses Maimonides. Everything that exists in nature can be conceived as not existing, and thus all natural being is contingent. That is to say the existence of anything is determined by something else which in turn is determined by yet another thing and so on until the whole question of what is to exist or not to exist must be resolved one way or another for good and all. The fourth or hierarchical argument is one of values. It is impossible to say that one thing is better than another without postulating an absolute good from which the perfect form of everything is derived. The final proof, which is perhaps not essentially different from the deistic notion of the clock and the clockmaker, is that existence of order and harmony in the universe presupposes a directing intelligence or providential design.

You have noticed, I dare say, that most of these arguments rest upon the assumption of a universe from which the possibility of infinite sequences is excluded. But when the Ptolemaic unverse was discredited by the Copernican astronomy and Aristotelian science in the revolution begun by Galileo and completed by Newton and La-Place, the arguments of St. Thomas fell into a long disrepute. Philosophers of the idealistic sort, eager to preserve a place for traditional religion in the new dispensation, reverted to the ontological argument and disposed of the outer universe by asserting that it need have no existence except in the mind. But thus, as in the case of the Neoplatonists, the divorce between metaphysics and natural science became well-nigh complete. The point of Sir Edmund's book is that the Thomistic arguments, and natural theology in general, have been to some extent rehabilitated by the more recent revelations of physics and astronomy. For example, the evidence that the universe is barely more than a trillion years old reestablishes for the purposes of argument the historical fact of Creation; it reintroduces the concept of absolute time—that is to say, a time which begins with the beginning of the world—and hence the possibility of a finite sequence ending with the Uncaused Cause. Thus with certain important modifications the proofs could be made valid for a post-Einsteinian universe and so put again to the service of religion. But Sir Edmund also appears to believe that before the reconciliation of natural science and scholastic theology can be achieved a good deal of the Aristotelian logic must be thrown overboard, and especially what is called the law of the excluded middle, or the principle that if a given proposition is not true it must be false, and vice versa.

But all in all, natural theology, meaning a theology which is constructed of inferences from experiment and direct observation, can hope for a much friendlier audience among the men of science than was possible a hundred or even fifty years ago. Or as Sir Edmund puts it: "The transition which is now in progress, from classical physics to a new natural philosophy conformable to relativity and quantum mechanics, is less violent than that which took place three centuries ago, when classical physics arose on the ashes of Aristotelianism: but it may prove not less significant."

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

The Tito Trouble—III

THE GREAT BREAK between Marshal Tito's Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union rather brusquely poses a question for the American policy-makers. What do we do about it? Breaking the Kremlin's grip on its eastern European empire has long been a major aim of American policy. And here is the first break, two years at least before any was expected. No advance plans have been made for dealing with the situation, and it is a hard situation to deal with. Marshal Tito is now independent. But he is still undeniably the dictator of a revolutionary police state with strong militarist tendencies.

Even amid their jubilation, indeed, the milder spirits among the American policy-makers are a trifle inclined to find the whole business rather embarrassing. Nonetheless, it is possible to predict that reasonably hard-headed, realistic measures will ultimately be adopted.

There have already been a couple of straws to show which way the wind may blow. Very recently, just before the crisis came into the open, one of Tito's chief lieutenants, Ales Bebler, approached a member of the British Parliament, F. E. Noel-Baker, who is also the son of a British Cabinet member. Bebler said frankly that he wished to discuss the possibility of economic aid from the West for Yugoslavia. It was no doubt this incident, among others, which led the Cominform to accuse the Yugoslav leaders of "attempts to conciliate foreign powers."

THE SECOND INCIDENT concerned the 50 million dollars of Yugoslav gold impounded in the United States. For many months, the dispute over this sum had gone on acrimoniously. The Yugoslavs had demanded the entire sum, except a paltry six million dollars which they were willing to pay for American property seized in Yugoslavia. The minimum figure our Government had been willing to consider was 17 million dollars. Then, two weeks ago, out of the blue, the Yugoslavs suddenly offered about 20 million dollars.

As one looks back, this was evidently one of Tito's preparations for what was about to occur. A deal was immediately made on the basis of 20 million dollars of the gold for the American investors and 30 million dollars for Tito. And now the American officials concerned are visibly pleased to be able to announce the agreement (made on their side with no clear foresight of the future) at a time when it appears a gesture of encouragement to Yugoslav independence.

These two incidents suggest what was one of the sharpest causes of Tito's row with the Kremlin. This was the failure of the Kremlin to provide Yugoslavia with urgently needed economic support. Yugoslavia is militarized well beyond its strength. The Yugoslav economy is desperately in need of raw materials and machinery—especially the latter. For economic reasons alone, Tito cannot simply float indefinitely in a kind of limbo, neither western nor Soviet. The truth is that he cannot permanently maintain his independence of Moscow, because he cannot do without economic aid and political support forever, unless he gets some help from the West. That puts the problem in the end up to us in the United States.

The problem is hideously complex. On the one hand, there are the facts. Yugoslavia represents 36 divisions, and invaluable strategic position and an almost irreparable break in the iron facade of Soviet imperialism. On the other hand there are the facts of the character of Tito's regime, his long and loudly proclaimed hostility to the United States and his recent reassertion of faith in Communist principles.

THE SOLUTION that is currently most favored is intended to avoid the bad alternatives both of an ungraceful scramble to aid Tito and a hostility which would in the end force Tito to bow his head to the Kremlin. The first step is likely to be a carefully planned diplomatic conversation on a fairly low level, probably neither in Washington nor Belgrade, and perhaps conducted through a French or British intermediary.

The man charged with telling our side of the story will remark that the western nations and especially the United States are too wise to bear grudes for all the hard things Tito has said although our attitude toward militarized police states has undergone no change. But he will point out that relations with Yugoslavia are capable of being bettered because Yugoslavia has ceased to be a tool of Soviet imperialism. He will say that since Yugoslavia is now independent, the way is open for talks intended to remove differences and to reach mutually profitable understandings. The conversion of Tito to what the Kremlin calls "western bourgeois democracy" can hardly be expected to result from such a conversation. But one can expect that he will be helped to maintain his independence of the Kremlin, and that he will accept such help.

It must be added that the Yugoslav crisis will probably precipitate the adoption of a sensible if somewhat cynical principle of foreign relations. This is the principle that the internal affairs of other nations, however unpleasing to us, are after all their own business. What really matters to us is their external relations—whether, in a word, they are with us or against us.

Talmage Wilcher Focal Point In Va. Republican Group Row

Status of Talmage Wilcher as a member of the Virginia State Republican Committee was in doubt yesterday after an intra-party row at a harmony rally Saturday night.

Wilcher

There was disagreement as to extent of the row, among those who attended a banquet of the Republican District Policy Committee in the George Mason Hotel, Alexandria.

But Carl Marshall, chairman of the Republican Eighth Congressional District Committee, said yesterday he understood Wilcher had tendered his resignation as a State committee member.

"And if he has not, he will be invited to tender his resignation," said Marshall. "And if he does not tender his resignation, proceedings will be started to make him resign."

Wilcher Unavailable

Wilcher, defeated Republican candidate for the Virginia State Senate and an Arlington real estate dealer, could not be reached yesterday.

Robert H. Woods, State chairman of the Republican Party and its candidate for the U. S. Senate, who spoke at the banquet and opened his political campaign, said yesterday that any row between Marshall and Wilcher was "purely a local matter. I very studiously avoided witnessing what went on. There might have been some words exchanged."

According to Francis J. Clair, free lance writer, who is running for a seat on the Arlington County Board on an independent ticket (after the Republican county committee rejected him as a party didate) the whole thing was a "panic and a riot".

Clair said that just before Woods' speech, Wilcher asked Marshall for permission to introducee a resolution. Marshall ruled him out of order.

Report of Melee

Wilcher, Clair said, then called Marshall a "harsh name" and "invited him out of the hall." Marshall came down from the speaker's stand with apparent intent to go out of the hall, said Clair. But Wilcher met him half way, "grabbed him by the throat and pulled him by his lapels."

There followed a general melee in which, Clair estimates, 20 people were involved. This was finally settled and Woods made his speech.

Clair said the unread resolution concerned sponsorship by an Arlington Republican Club of Nathan J. Paulson, Republican city chairman of Alexandria, as State chairman of Virginia Young Republicans.

Marshall said he didn't know what the resolution said but that the party referred to in it doesn't exist.

Marshall said there "might have been words" between him and Wilcher but that he didn't strike or get struck by Wilcher.

Said Nathan J. Paulson, Republican City Chairman of Alexandria, "If there are reports of a fight or fisticuffs, I suggest you reach the two principals involved. . . . I hope I have not given you the impression I don't want to talk. . . . The only fights I'm interested in are political fights."

A. D. A. Urges Eisenhower Or Douglas

"Harry S. Truman is a game little guy" but . . .

The Americans for Democratic Action don't want him for President any more. In a pamphlet containing seven alternately pleading and aggressive cartoons, they are asking voters to "Win With Eisenhower and/or Douglas."

Leon Henderson, national A. D. A. chairman, is circularizing the pamphlet, which was prepared in New York for distribution to delegates from that State to the Democratic convention in Philadelphia next week.

Concedes Place in History

The only thing the A. D. A. pamphlet concedes to Truman is a place in history. They don't even want the Democratic delegates to vote for him on the first ballot.

"This grave moment needs a new face," the pamphlet declares. "The whole world needs a smashing top-to-bottom victory of progressives in America. To vindicate his own program—which will be killed by a Republican success—Harry S. Truman needs a Democratic victory. That victory can be won by Eisenhower and/or Douglas."

The and/or combination is justified thus:

"The only way a man takes himself out of this race is to say what Sherman said: 'If nominated I will not run, if elected I will not serve.' Neither Ike nor Bill has said it! Every Democrat needs a ticket that can win. New York must lead the way to Eisenhower and/or Douglas."

Not Man of the Hour

The A. D. A. pamphlet asserts Truman has not won the minds and hearts of the people; that the "tale of two cities"—Omaha (where Truman spoke to an audience only one fourth of a hall's capacity) and Philadelphia—where the convention is to be held) explains why Truman is not the man of the hour; that victory takes an open convention plus a strong party, plus a winner, plus votes, plus money.

"This ain't the GOP!" the pamphlet shouts, and asks where is the money coming from to finance the party campaign.

To New York Democrats in elective offices there is a special plea:

"A political slate is as strong as its head." The A.D.A. shows how the New York Democrats (depicted as party donkeys) have had their heads lopped off by being pushed out of elective offices since the Truman Administration has been "in." In 1934, there were eight happy donkeys, representing 53 per cent of office holders; in 1946, there were four and a third very, very sad donkeys, representing 31 per cent of office holders.

"Every Democrat needs a ticket that can win!" the pamphlet shouts, and chants, once again, its solid refrain:

"Win with Eisenhower and/or Douglas."

Locusts, Beetles Jam U. S. Radio Station in Manila

Manila, July 4 (AP).—Locusts and beetles have succeeded where Russian power failed.

The Russians for months have been trying with little success to jam the powerful Voice of America Radio Station near Manila which broadcasts to Siberia and the Orient.

However, swarms of locusts and beetles have crawled through the walls to the transmitter, short-circuiting it and putting the station off the air at frequent intervals.

State Department technicians are finding an answer to the bugs. A new short-wave transmitter is being installed in a building which will be sealed to keep out locusts and beetles.

ADA Booklet Makes Anti-Truman Point . . .

FOR DEMOCRATS—Anti-Truman booklet prepared by Americans for Democratic Action and aimed at key New York State Democrats used the above cartoon among a number of others to point up anti-Truman sentiment. The text below this drawing said: "The people of New York want and need a Democratic presidential nominee who is right on the issues, and who will win. Mr. Truman simply has not won their minds and hearts. And Henry Wallace won't help matters here!"

Teen-Agers Form to Help In Civic Issues

A group of Falls Church teen-agers—who sometime think their elders might be more civic minded—are organizing to do something about it.

Tonight they'll gather at the Episcopal Parish Hall on E. Broad st. to give their idea a name, permanent officers, and something to shoot at.

The idea of plugging for civic improvement on a junior level first came to 15-year-old Jim Beard of 200 Grove ave., Falls Church, this spring.

Make Others Think

He got others to thinking. Why, for example, did only 458 people vote in last month's town election when Falls Church has a population of more than 5300?

And what are the solutions to perennial town problems of police, recreation, sanitation?

Interested teen-agers, most of them members of the newly formed Teen Canteen recreation center, set up a temporary organization with Beard as chairman, Bill Jibault, 17, of 519 Greenwich st., vice chairman, and Knox Altman, 18, of 704 W. Broad st., chairman of the nominating committee.

The group has been variously dubbed the "Diaper Democrats," and the "Teen-Aged Political Action Committee."

After tonight's organizational meeting, they hope to conduct a door-to-door canvass to find out how many people are registered to vote, and know Virginia voting rules.

They want to urge residents who qualify to turn out for future elections, because, as Beard put it: "You can't very well complain about your town officials if you didn't even try to vote."

And if a proposed group constitution passes tonight, they plan to elect a junior "mayor," and six "town councilmen," each of whom will head a subcommittee on a special town problem.

Interested adults are helping. Francis A. Wagner, president of the Falls Church Chamber of Commerce, is acting as adult adviser. Police Chief E. H. Howe has asked for a chance to speak to the group.

They think the teen-agers have something.

Peking Man Thigh Bone Found in Russia

London, July 4 (AP).—Tass reported today that Russian archeologist Dmitri Leva has discovered a bone which "resembles a thigh bone of a Sinanthropus (Peking Man)," one of the earliest ancestors of man that has been found.

The first such fossils were found near Peking, China. The Russian news agency said Leva found his near Samarkand, Uzbekistan, and termed it the first such discovery in Russia.

Gen. Eisenhower to Reaffirm Refusal to Run, Miller Says

Representative Arthur L. Miller (R., Nebr.) said last night he had it on "good authority" that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower will reaffirm Tuesday his opposition to running for President.

Miller said "someone who had spoken to the General" revealed that Eisenhower will issue a statement "stronger than before" that he wants to be considered out of the race.

Miller, a member of the House District Committee, brought this out at the "District Roundtable," a forum on Washington representation at political conventions, over WINX.

Participants in the discussion agreed that some political party recognitions should be written into the District's home rule bill.

Others on the program were George A. Parker, District delegate to the recent GOP convention, Paul J. Foley, one of a contesting Republican delegation that failed to win seats, and Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, District Democratic delegate to the coming convention and local National Guard commander. Attorney Ben Paul Noble was moderator.

Miller said he had already presented to the House home rule subcommittee staff the proposition for partisan politics in the District if home rule is enacted. It is being considered, he added.

The quartet of speakers agreed that more active political parties in Washington might result in larger turnouts of voters at primaries.

General Cox, explaining Democratic convention procedure, said the District delegation of 12, with a half-vote each, would go for President Truman as a unit "until the majority decides otherwise" as the convention balloting develops.

Kensington Meeting to Urge Tighter Town Voting Rules

Tightening of the town election procedure will be urged at a town meeting which will follow installation of the new mayor and council of Kensington, Md., at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday at Kensington National Guard Armory.

Leo J. Paulin said yesterday that he intends bringing the question of providing better election methods before the meeting. The town charter provides that any registered State voter who has resided in Kensington more than six months may vote in the town elections. No provision is made for providing an official list of voters, however, Paulin said.

Town officials should provide for registration of residents, he said, asserting he was certain that a number of persons voted in the town election who actually were not qualified because they reside outside the town limits. In earlier days, election officials knew all of the local residents but this condition no longer prevails, Paulin added.

Juvenile Court Judge Alfred D. Noyes will administer the oath of office to G. Leonard Daymude, mayor; Dr. James A. I. Parker and Mrs. Mildred Harman, town councilmen.

Following the ceremonies the town council will hold its meeting. Then an old-fashioned meeting in which all residents will be allowed to speak will be held.

53 Democratic Leaders Back Truman Civil Rights Program

Minneapolis, July 4 (U.P.).—Fifty-three Democratic Party leaders of Eastern, Midwestern and Western States said tonight they will seek to incorporate President Truman's civil rights program into the party's platform at the national convention opening July 12.

A statement of the group was issued by Minneapolis Mayor Hubert H. Humphrey, who said it was drafted and circulated by James Roosevelt, chairman of the California Democratic committee, and Jacob M. Avery, leader of the Cook County (Chicago) party unit.

Humphrey, a member of the 15-man Democratic platform committee, said he would present the statement at the convention in Philadelphia.

The declaration said that "we shall actively seek to make the accomplishment of this (civil rights) program a part of our party's platform in 1948."

The civil rights program, which includes provisions for antipoll tax, antilynching and antisegregation legislation, has been the rallying point of a "revolt" by Southern Democrats against President Truman.

The statement called the program "one of the most important measures of moral strategy devised by the United States of America in modern times."

ECA to Work With Non-Red Labor Abroad

By The Associated Press

Labor advisers with Marshall Plan missions overseas will work with "non-Communist European trade union leaders" in the recovery effort.

Paul G. Hoffman, economic cooperation administrator, made this announcement yesterday, declaring:

"This is a particularly vital responsibility, because the non-Communist groups in the participating countries constitute a well organized and influential democratic, political, social and spiritual force in each country."

Hoffman said the labor advisers would be links between European union leaders and the chiefs of the various aid missions. They will supply information on manpower problems and "advice on matters affecting the recovery program."

Grable, Crosby Top Movie Stars' Pay

By the United Press

Betty Grable's shapely legs yesterday carried her out in front as the Nation's highest paid woman for the second straight year, while Bing Crosby's crooning put him at the top of Hollywood stardom's list of breadwinners.

The Treasury's annual salary listing showed that Miss Grable drew down $299,333 from Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corp. in 1946. She got $208,000 in 1945. Crosby was paid $325,000 by Paramount Pictures, Inc., topping Bob Hope, who drew down $275,000.

The highest paid individual for the period, which covers either the calendar year 1946 or the 12 months ending June 30, 1947, was Charles P. Skouras, head of National Theaters Amusement Co. and Fox West Coast Agency Corp. His salary was $985,300. Skouras also headed the list the previous year with $568,143.

The Treasury figures don't show what the top money winner's actual take-home pay is, since Uncle Sam grabbed the lion's share in income taxes. For instance, Skouras had to pay close to $800,000 in income taxes, Miss Grable about $225,000 and Crosby about $250,000.

And the list doesn't really reveal the Nation's biggest incomes, since it covers only salaries and bonuses from corporations amounting to $75,000 or more annually. Many of the wealthiest Americans get their main income from stock and bond dividends.

Miss Grable placed only ninth when the men were included. Her husband, Band Leader Harry James, swelled the family earnings by another $100,036.

Sunday Fourth Here Subdued; Real Celebration Due Today

many out-of-town visitors, are expected to attend the city's largest celebration—a combined Washington Monument centennial and Independence Day fete on the north slope of the Monument grounds. It begins at 7:50 tonight.

Scores of others, wary of the 90-degree temperature and cloudless skies forecast by the weatherman, will be at Chesapeake Bay beaches, nearby country areas and just shady spots right in the city.

Yesterday found the roads leading to resorts still thick with holidayers, but appreciably less jammed than on Friday and Saturday. The American Automobile Association here was "extremely" busy with better-late-than-never customers, and Union Station attaches reported travel quite brisk for a Sunday.

Today several thousands persons are expected to take advantage of the Naval Gun Factory's invitation to visit vessels open for inspection to the public, from 12:30 to 4:30 p. m. Two thousand yesterday breezed through the ships, including a destroyer, attack transport, patrol chaser and submarine.

Tonight's Monument program, beginning at 7:50 p. m., will include band concerts, massing of the colors, entertainment by professionals, speeches and a bangup, hour-long fireworks display.

Principal address will be by Chief Justice Bolitha J. Lewis of the District Court of Appeals. A special feature will be a short talk by Mrs. Esther Rosenbloom, a native of French Morocco, who married an Army Air Force officer, Harry Rosenbloom, and recently became a naturalized citizen. Mr. and Mrs. Rosenbloom and their two children live at 413 8th st. ne.

Novelty acts during the evening will include the Shyrettos, and Franklin and Moore; featured soloist will be Miss Lynn Allison and Gene Archer, radio singers.

At about 9:30 p. m., the fireworks will be launched, following readings from the Declaration of Independence by Movie Actor Edward Arnold and a history of the flag by Guy A. Caponneto, exalted ruler of Elks Lodge No. 15. The fireworks display will include aerial pictures of the first and present U. S. Presidents—George Washington and Harry S. Truman.

Tickets, entitling the holder to a chair on the Monument grounds, are available at all Peoples Drug Stores, leading hotels, special booths on the grounds and the D. C. Information Center in the lobby of the Star Building. They sell for $1, including tax. No tickets are needed to view the spectacle without a seat.

Chasing a greased pig will enliven festivities at a "real old fashioned" Independence Day picnic and celebration at the Rock Creek Recreation Center, just south of the East-West Highway between Silver Spring and Bethesda.

A crowd of 10,000 is expected to be present shortly after activities get underway at 2 p. m. Events include a gas model airplane circus, a horse-shoe pitching contest, sports competitions, bingo, a band concert and evening fireworks.

The Cabin John Volunteer Fire Department, in its third annual Fourth of July Community Day Celebration, from 2 p. m. to midnight, will offer a country-style ham and chicken dinner. Later, at 3:30 p. m., a parade of fire-fighting equipment, fire departments, bands and marching units of local organizations will leave from Westmoreland Circle.

Patriotic exercises and athletic events will be held at the Coolidge Recreation Center, 4th and Van Buren sts. nw. A parade, track and swimming meets, an evening dance and fireworks, will highlight the celebration—to run from 9 a. m. to 11 p. m.

Other playground fetes scheduled by the District Recreation Department and expected to attract thousands include: Palisades, Potomac ave. and Weaver pl. nw., contests picnic and patriotic ceremony; Georgetown, 33d and Q sts. nw., contests, softball and patriotic ceremony; Taft, 18th and Perry sts. ne., parade, athletic events, patriotic ceremony; Langdon Park, 17th and Franklin sts. ne., athletic contests, patriotic ceremony and soap box derby.

One on the Aisle—

Advice From One Who Went Native

By Richard L. Coe

EVALYN TYNER, who went native in Gene Ford's first "Going Native" revue at the Capitol, has gone a long way since. Vaudeville, records, night clubs, radio and appearances with the symphony orchestras have all come to Mrs. Fordyce C. Minnick, sometimes a housewife of Arlington's Aurora Hills, sometimes a Gotham headliner.

"What about these youngsters who soon will be making their first appearances in Gene's next 'Going Native'?" we asked Evalyn. "What chance have they got and what would you advise them to do?"

"That's a tall order," replies Miss T., "but certainly the most important thing is never to take either failure or success too seriously and, at all events, to work every chance that comes along.

"Experience is the big thing in the entertainment world. You can't expect to rise quickly; if you do, you may not last. Some chances you get to work in front of audience may seem to be complete flops, may not even seem worth the trying. But no matter how badly things may go, you should always learn something from experience.

"Youngsters should never get too upset about technical details that seem to militate against them. If you've got to do your act against the backwall of the stage—far from the audience—or if you're a dancer and the floor is too rough to do your best on, forget it. Work as hard as you can whenever you get the chance.

"And ambitious performers should never feel that any engagement is too minor for them. Everything depends on the individual performer, of course, but if some of this year's crop of "Going Native" performers get a chance to play anywhere after their week at the Capitol, my advice would be to grab it. If it's just a tiny night club with an audience of 10 drink-sippers, the inexperienced performer can learn something of his job.

"Furthermore, an entertainer's job is to take people out of themselves, to make them, if you'll pardon my putting it cornily, perhaps, happier than they were before you went on. That's something that's true of all successful stage people; they never fail to put on a show when they're asked to work."

Miss Tyner should know. Her success as an entertainer-pianist has kept her working in some of the flossiest gathering spots of the escapist-seekers.

After her week at the Capitol, she'll buckle down to scales and practicing for her return engagement this summer with the Cleveland Symphony, where she'll probably play Gershwin's Rhapsody in Blue. In the fall she'll be going back to Gotham's swank St. Regis and some more radio dates.

As the wife of Washington Hotelman Minnick, the mother of youthful prep-schooler Wendell and the chatelaine of a pleasant Arlington home, Evalyn has another job most performers don't tarry over. She's her now agent and manager.

"Just relax" is Evalyn's advice. "Don't be discouraged by failure and don't be overcome by success."

JOSE FERRER has been signed to costar with Eugenia Leontovich in Olney's "Twentieth Century" for the week's run beginning July 13 . . . This is something of a coup, for Ferrer is one of those rare birds whose reputation comes from versatility . . . This graduate of Princeton's Triangle shows has scored equally as comedian, dramatic actor and producer . . . Probably one of the Olney lures for Ferrer is Co-Producer Richard Skinner . . . It was Dick Skinner, with his Washington Civic Theater associate, Ray Tuttle, who first starred Ferrer in New York . . . That was their enormously popular revival of "Charlie's Aunt" and Ferrer was a riot in it . . . Since then he's done "Othello" and "Cyrano de Bergerac" and floated New York's City Center Theater company . . . Joe will be quite an addition to Olney.

MATINEES abound this holiday, with "Harvey" leading the parade at the National . . . Of all the "Harvey" publicity there's been, certainly yesterday morning's page one story of the lady driver who insists Harvey was at the wheel is the most beguiling . . . Lud, Mary Chase shore 'nuff started something when she called her pookah "Harvey" . . . Publicity man Murdock Pemberton knows well that front page publicity is something you can't buy . . . The Warner and Lust Theaters want you to be sure to know they're all having matinees this afternoon.

Ministers Stress Independence Day

The divine source of American freedom, recognized in the Declaration of Independence, was stressed by ministers yesterday in Fourth of July sermons.

"Behind each of the great documents of freedom was a yearning for righteousness that was nothing less than the spirit of God moving in the hearts of men," Dr. I. S. Ernst told the congregation of Memorial Evangelical United Brethren Church.

The Rev. Donald F. Bautz, executive director of the Lutheran Inner Mission Society, preaching at the First Congregational Church, said "Christ's emphasis on the worth of persons" was a main source of American democracy.

"Faith of Our Forefathers"

"Democracy which was born in the Declaration of Independence has for many of us ceased being a cause and become a picnic," he said. "The faith of our founding fathers is largely forgotten in our Fourth of July celebrations.

"Our task today," he said, "is to stand fast in the faith of our fathers who freed our Nation from tyranny as we endeavor to make our Nation the symbol of freedom for all the oppressed peoples of the world."

The Rev. C. Stanley Lowell at Wesley Methodist Church called for a "new patriotism." It "must be strong enough to meet the demands and sacrifices of peacetime" and "must operate domestically as well as internationally."

"We have insisted that the American Flag should not be dishonored anywhere on the face of the earth. We also must insist that it shall not be dishonored here at home.

"Discrimination based on race or religion; a public school system collapsing from neglect; a youth inadequately trained and cared for; our personal selfishness and love of ease; our indifference toward crucial issues of the day—all this is dishonoring the flag," Mr. Lowell said.

Speaking on the topic "Why Americans Should Support the Church," Dr. Seth R. Brooks of Universalist National Memorial Church declared that "nations can endure without belief in God, but once the concept of a God of righteousness and justice is lost, nations depart from integrity.

"Let the moral and ethical concepts which come from the belief in God die and men are ruled by terror, ruthlessness and fear," he said.

Patriot Described

Chaplain Harold G. Elsam, at Mount Rainier Christian Church, described the true patriot as a man who has the ability to envision our Nation's growth, who has a true sense of values, and who has faith in God, man and in the future.

The God-given moral and spiritual inheritance of America must be used or lost, the Rev. Robert W. Long told the congregation at Arlington's Faith Lutheran Church.

Americans, he said, must exercise freedom to worship by attending the church of their choice. Men of Christian conscience must use the right of speech and the right to vote, he said.

Woman Held In Husband's Fatal Knifing

Women figured in two District stabbings, one fatal, during the weekend.

James C. Grant, 44, of 105 I st. nw., was pronounced dead on arrival at Gallinger from chest stab wounds inflicted with a butcher knife during an argument with his wife, Margaret, 28, Saturday night.

Police are holding Mrs. Grant for appearance at a coroner's inquest Tuesday at 11:30 a. m. The woman declared Grant pointed a revolver at her during a fight.

In another case, Rodney Hall, 34, of 93a I st. nw. was admitted to Mount Alto Hospital in an undetermined condition after he was stabbed in the chest with a cuticle knife wielded by a woman assailant.

The attack occurred in the 1200 block of New York ave. nw. during an argument. The assailant, identified by a witness through pictures in the police identification bureau, has not yet been arrested.

Also in Mount Alto Hospital is Thomas Winston, 30, of 522 24th st. nw., who suffered a ruptured liver after he was kicked in the stomach during a dice game in Ricketts ct. nw. late Saturday.

VA Is Winning Fight Against Mental Ills

Slowly but surely Veterans' Administration medical men are winning their battle to bring health to sick minds and to calm war-induced emotional turmoil.

This is made evident today with the announcement that for the first time in many years the VA is able to discharge about as many persons as it admits to its neuropsychiatric hospitals.

Figures covering July, 1947, through April, 1948, just released, show 51,210 admitted with 52,270 discharged as improved or cured, or a total of 1060 on the right side of the ledger.

Improved techniques with stress laid on early treatment before neuroses become deeply imbedded are given credit for the progress by Dr. Harvey Tompkins, chief of VA's neuropsychiatric service.

The improved program includes: establishment of neuropsychiatric units in general medical hospitals to permit early intensive treatment of acute psychotic and other psychiatric patients; use of insulin shock and electric shock therapy; extensive educational programs; extension of mental hygiene clinics; establishment of special laboratories; utilization of volunteer workers, and establishment of research programs.

Petworth Baptists Accept Rodgers Resignation

Despite opposition by the board of deacons, members of Petworth Baptist Church yesterday voted to accept the resignation of the church's pastor, the Rev. James O. Rodgers.

The deacons had recommended the resignation be rejected and that the church extend the Rev. Rodgers a call for another four years. The pastor had submitted his resignation last week.

However, after church Clerk Bessie Burchell had read a statement from the pastor that he wished to be released to accept a post with a Winter Haven, Fla., church, the congregation voted to acquiesce.

Next week the church will consider the proffered resignation of the music minister, Luther C. Carter, who has accepted a position at an Atlanta, Ga., church.

Hard Coal Miners Pay Raise Ratified by Scale Committee

New York, July 4 (AP).—The United Mine Workers' scale committee today ratified an agreement with anthracite operators calling for a one-dollar-a-day increase for 80,000 miners in hard coal fields.

The agreement also provides for an increase of from 10 to 20 cents per ton in royalties to be paid by the operators into the UMW health and welfare fund.

The agreement between the operators and UMW negotiators was announced last night, but details of the new contract were not disclosed then.

The 35-man scale committee's ratification of the contract was announced following a two-hour session at which John L. Lewis, UMW president, and other members of the negotiating committee made their recommendations.

Thomas Kennedy, the union's vice president, described the agreement as an extension of the current contract, which expires July 10, except for some minor clauses and provisions for the increased wages and welfare fund payments.

Kennedy placed at $31,200,000 the total "package" of increased financial benefits.

Kennedy said the union now could plan a pension system similar to that undertaken in the bituminous industry. Soft coal miners tentatively are scheduled to receive $100-a-month pensions, beginning at the age of 62.

Negotiations have been under way since May 27.

The union said present wage scales for hard coal miners average $11.10 for a seven-hour day for those classified as company miners and $10.53 for company laborers. Contract miners, who operate on a piece-work basis, average $13 a day.

With Shirley Povich

UNLIKE JIM JEFFRIES, who was the first heavyweight champion of the world to retire undefeated, Joe Louis is presuming the title is not his to hand over and is tapping nobody as his successor.

POVICH

Other than speaking a nice word for Jersey Joe Walcott, and mentioning, too, that Lightheavy Champion Gus Lesnevich and Ezzard Charles stack up as possibilities, Louis has made no move to designate the next champion of the world. Anyway, he knows the public is reluctant to accept a new champion quickly.

When he ran out of opposition in 1905, Jeffries coincident with his retirement selected Marvin Hart and Jack Root as the top contenders and agreed to referee and recognize a bout between the pair for the title. Hart stopped Root in 12 rounds, but he was a synthetic champion, never popularly acclaimed.

Neither was Tommy Burns who laid claim to the title in 1906 after outpointing Hart, recognized as more than an interim champion until some towering figure should happen along. The boxing world finally got one when Jack Johnson stopped Burns in Australia in 1908.

THOSE WERE THE YEARS when Nordic supremacy in the prize ring was for some reason regarded as a ridiculous must, and it prompted Jeffries to come out of retirement after a five year layoff to battle Johnson at Reno, Nev., 38 years ago yesterday. A fat, slow, terrified Jeffries was knocked out in 15 rounds and the country had an undisputed champion who was anything but a popular figure.

From 1910, the heavyweight title was not in dispute again until 17 years later when Gene Tunney went into retirement and vacated the crown. Like Louis, Tunney adopted a hands-off attitude toward any successor, but two years later two challengers—Jack Sharkey and Max Schmeling—stood far out in front of the rest.

Sharkey had dispatched the ghost of Harry Wills, whom Jack Dempsey had always ducked, and there was a popular belief that Tunney was discreet in sidestepping Sharkey and choosing Tom Heeney for his last title defense. Schmeling parlayed a facial resemblance to Jack Dempsey and a good right hand punch, plus a win over Paulino Uzcudun, into some fame and a Schmeling-Sharkey bout was recognized as a title affair.

IT WAS UNSATISFACTORY as far as giving the boxing world an undisputed champion. Schmeling claimed a foul in the fourth round and was awarded the title by the vote of Jim Farley of the New York Boxing Commission. He was labeled, however, as the first champion ever to win the title while sitting down. But he went on to stop Young Stribling at Cleveland, and when Sharkey outpointed Schmeling in 15 rounds in 1932, the country had a champion it could accept.

For the eleven years of Joe Louis' reign (1937-48) there was nothing synthetic about possession of the title. He not only defended his crown 25 times, held the title longer than any other man, was popular to the extreme, and ducked nobody; only three men went the limit with him.

One of those was Walcott and despite his hate toward Jersey Joe, Louis had the magnanimity to mention him among the men who deserved a shot at the vacant title. As the situation now reads, Walcott is the only legitimate heavyweight in the top circle of contenders. Both Lesnevich and Charles can make the lightheavyweight limit.

THERE IS AMPLE PRECEDENT for lightheavyweights stepping up into the heavy division and winning the title. Bob Fitzsimmons was a mere 167-pounder when he knocked out Heavyweight Champ Jim Corbett. The lightheavyweight division was not in existence in that period, but came into being in 1903, and Fitzsimmons who could still make the 175-pound limit, won the lightheavy title four years after he lost the heavyweight title to Fitzsimmons.

Gene Tunney stepped out of the lightheavyweight title to fight among the heavies and win, and Georges Carpentier was wearing the lightheavy crown when he battled Dempsey for the big title. Tommy Loughran, like Tunney and Carpentier and Billy Conn and now Lesnevich, abandoned the lightheavy title to fight for the bigger dough in the heavyweight division.

Or maybe you knew it all the time.

Nats Outhit Yanks But Lose, 6-5

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

New York, July 4.—Washington made 14 base hits today, a phenomenon in itself, and Gil Coan contributed one of the greatest catches ever made on any baseball diamond, but the Yankees won the ball game, 6-5.

The beleaguered Nats finally broke out of their offensive lethargy, outswatting the Champions by five hits, but the Bombers got more mileage out of theirs and won the rubber match of the three-game set, much to the delight of 27,601 holiday patrons.

Bucky Harris' wrecking crew, trailing most of the way, pushed over the decisive run in the eighth after the Nats had tied the score earlier in that same inning.

Coan Acclaimed by Crowd

An outfield fly by Catcher Larry Berra drove in Phil Rizzuto with the run that brought Early Wynn his eighth defeat and left the Nats a record of seven triumphs against nine defeats for the current road trip, which ended today.

The stadium assembly cheered lustily when Berra's fly fetched Rizzuto, but saved their loudest demonstration for Gil Coan's miraculous catch off the bat of Joe DiMaggio, which followed.

With Tommy Henrick, who doubled Rizzuto to third, on second base, DiMaggio swung for home-run territory in left field and connected. Coan, racing at full speed, never once slowing down, draped himself over the rail guarding the boxes, stuck out his gloved hand and caught it.

It was a miraculous play, one that made Al Gionfriddo's catch of another sure home run by DiMaggio in last year's World Series pale by comparison, according to press box observers who saw both catches.

Coan caught the ball after it was in the field boxes, 340 feet away from the plate. Fans and ballplayers alike thought Coan had missed making a daring play, but when he jumped off the rail and hoisted the ball in his glove for the umpires to see everyone in the park cheered him vigorously.

McBride's Boot Costly

Coan had replaced Tom McBride in the seventh inning and had his predecessor not booted a single into a home run the Nats would have won the ball game.

With the Nats leading 1-0 in the third, DiMaggio drew one of the four walks Wynn issued. After George McQuinn popped up, Billy Johnson singled sharply to left. McBride, racing in, missed the ball, allowing it to roll to the wall in deep left and also permitting DiMaggio and Johnson to score.

The Nats got that back in the fifth when they bunched four of the 11 hits they made off Starter Ed Lopat count for two runs. McBride doubled in one and Gilenwater's single chased in the other.

Singles by Wooten, Al Evans and Wynn's infield out added another run to the Nat total in the sixth and also expelled Lopat in favor of Karl Drews.

The ever-dangerous Yankees, however, went to work on Wynn in their sixth, pummeling him for three hits and as many runs to resume command at 5-4. With the bases loaded, Rizzuto singled two runs in and a DiMaggio fly accounted for the third.

With two away in the eighth, Wynn blasted a triple 40 deep left off Randy Gumpert and Yost scored him with his third single to tie it up.

It remained that way only as long as it took the Yankees to get to bat. Rizzuto set up the run by walking. Henrich doubled him to third and Berra folowed with a fly to Ed Steward to score him. Then followed Coan's spectacular catch.

Lefty Joe Page, the Yankee reliefer par excellence, gave up a single to Mark Christman with two away in the ninth but quickly snuffed out the last Nat chance by making Vernon foul to Berra.

IN SHORT—Because he shunned the use of sun glasses, Billy Johnson presented the Nats with their first run. He lost Al Evans' easy foul pop-up in the second. His batting life extended, Evans bashed out the first of his three singles to drive in Earl Wooten, who had singled and stolen second. . . . Johnson, who in the same inning dropped Mickey Vernon's foul, wore glasses after that. . . . The Nats almost went into receivership in the catching department. Evans injured his head on a foul tip in the sixth and had to come out. Jake Early stopped another foul with his knee in the eighth, but remained in the game.

BUTCH ISN'T IMPRESSED—Citation, Calumet Farm's triple crown winner, nuzzles Butch, stable mascot at Arlington Park track but the big bulldog appears uninterested, at least until after he sees how Citation fares in today's added Stars and Stripes Handicap. Holding the halter is Freeman MacMillan, exercise boy

Citation May Set Earnings Mark Today

By Charles Chamberlain

Chicago, July 4 (AP).—Citation, Calumet Farm's sensational triple-crown winner, can set a money earning record for a single year with a victory in the $50,000 added Stars and Stripes Handicap at Arlington Park tomorrow.

With famed Eddie Arcaro aboard, Citation will be running against older horses for only the second time in his great career and a throng of 40,000 is expected.

Should the 3-year-old win, he stands to collect $39,500 if all 12 entries go postward. This would zoom his winnings to $428,320, topping Assault's record for a single year by $4125.

His Twentieth Start

Among the Calumet champion's 10 races so far this campaign was a victory February 11 at Hialeah in the Seminole Handicap at seven furlongs. This was his debut as a 3-year-old nd his first test against older competitors.

He won handily from such horses as Delegate, Armed and others. From there on, Arcaro booted him through an amazing victory streak which included the cherished triple crown—The Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont.

Citation will be making the twentieth start of his career in the Stars and Stripes fixture at 1⅛ miles, one of the most colorful events on the Nation's racing calendar. In that span of races, he has been beaten only twice and already has won more money than any other horse in history over a two-year-stretch. He took $155,680 in 1947 and has, $388,820 so far in 1948 for a total of $544,500.

Fervent Top-Weighted

Citation's first defeat was to the Calumet filly, Bewitch, in the Washington Park futurity last year. He finished second. The other defeat came this year at Havre de Grace when he was forced wide and ran second to Saggy.

The son of Bull Lea and Hydroplane II will meet some sharp horses tomorrow and if he wins he should be established as one of America's truly great thoroughbreds.

When the entries closed Citation and two stablemates, Fervent and Faultless, were Calumet Farm's choices against Delegate, Eternal Reward, Knockdown, Star Reward, Mighty Story, Pellicle, Stud Poker, Loujac and Colosal.

Dorothy Head Wins

Cincinnati, July 4 (AP).—Dorothy Head of Alameda, Calif., won the women's singles championship of the Tri-State Tennis tournament today by defeating Mrs. Baba Madden Lewis of Tulsa, Okla., in straight sets, 6—4, 6—4.

Wichita, Kans., July 4 (AP).—James McHale, former Philadelphia pro, staved off a late rally by Harold Paddock, jr., Aurora, Ohio, for a one-up victory today in the semifinals of the western amateur golf tournament. He will meet Robert (Skee) Riegel for the title playoff.

Riegel, the National Amateur Champion, turned on the steam in the second 18 holes of today's semifinals, to knock out Medalist Lawrence Glosser of Oklahoma City, 6 and 5.

Outburst Ties Major League Mark

Boston, July 4 (AP).—With a modern major league record-matching outburst of 14 runs in a single inning, the Boston Red Sox broke a 5-5 tie in the seventh to gain a hollow 19-5 win over the Philadelphia Athletics today before a stunned 24,363 crowd.

Twelve of those markers were against 23-year-old relief Pitcher Charlie Harris, who retired only one of the 13 batters who faced him during that horrible baseball nightmare.

Eddie Joost had homered with Harris aboard in the A's half of the seventh to tie the score at 5-5 and set the stage for the amazing outburst.

One Boston player after another paraded to the plate and not until 11 consecutive batters had reached base safetly, did the 23-year-old Harris retire a man. After Stan Spencer flied out to senter field, the Sox started all over again.

Vernon Stephens singled and Bobby Doerr walked before Mack beckoned Bill McCahan in from the bull-pen.

When McCahan took over, 10 runs were in and 2 men were still on base. McCahan allowed both of these to score as the red-hot Sox teed off for three more hits and still another pair of runs before Ted Williams grounded out to retire the side.

Spencer, Payne in Final

Hot Springs, Va., July 4 (AP).—Two endurance masters from the tidewater area today fought their way into Monday's 36-hole marathon finals of the Virginia State amateur golf championship.

One of them was Wynsol Spencer, of Newport News, who had to go 23 holes this morning before he could even think about the finals. The other was Richard (Dick) Payne, Norfolk cotton broker, who was extended to the 19th hole this afternoon.

So Monday, Spencer and Payne, a couple of former champions in the amateur derby, will tee off on the first 18-hole lap of the 36-hole test over the rugged par-71, 6714-yard Cascades layout at 9 a. m. (EST).

Spencer, tournament medalist, just wouldn't be beaten this morning although it wasn't until the 23d hole he whipped Nelson Broach, Richmond city titlist, 1 up. But after lunch Spencer made comparatively quick work of Wilson Black, also of Richmond, 6 and 4.

Payne, who plays out of the Princess Anne Club at Virginia Beach, birdied the 19th hole as dusk gathered to eliminate A. P. (Pat) Janssen, of Charlottesville, 1 up. Payne's endurance test came after he had thrashed Ralph English, of Roanoke, in the morning quarterfinals, 7 and 5.

Bosox Smash Three Marks, Tie 1

Boston, July 4 (U.P.).—Boston's Red Sox smashed three records and tied a fourth today in their 14-run seventh inning against the Athletics.

The 14 runs tied the American League record set by the New York Yankees in 1920.

Ted Williams became the first American Leaguer ever to come to bat three times in one inning.

The two-team total for the hectic seventh—16 runs—broke the 15-year-old American League record of 15 runs by two teams in one inning.

Nineteen Boston players went to bat, smashing the American League record of 18 for one inning set by the Yankees in 1920 and tied by Detroit in 1925.

Dodgers Get Four in Ninth To Win, 13-12

Brooklyn, July 4 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Giants celebrated the Fourth of July today with a demonstration of fireworks that lasted three and a half hours and finally ended with the Dodgers winning, 13-12.

Each team scored four times in the ninth, the Dodgers grabbing the tying and winning runs in the last half of the ninth when Pete Reiser cracked a pinch single with the bases loaded and none out.

The Dodgers came from behind twice to make it two in a row over the Giants. They trailed 8-3 at one point, but came up with three runs in each of the seventh and eighth innings to take a 9-8 lead.

The Giants regained the lead in their half of the ninth, scoring four runs off Ralph Branca, Fifth Dodger hurler. After Willard Marshall tied the score by hitting his tenth home run, Billy Rigney walloped his seventh round tripper with two on to put the Giants ahead, 12-9.

Donnelly And Rookie Hurl Wins

Philadelphia, July 4 (AP).—The Philadelphia Phillies, behind tight pitching of Blix Donnelly and Rookie Robin Roberts, jolted the front-running Boston Braves twice today, 7-2 and 5-2.

Donnelly limited the Braves to four hits in the opener while Roberts, a $25,000 bonus hurler from Michigan State, captured his third straight decision in the nightcap.

The twin defeat narrowed the Braves' first place margin to two and a half games over the runner-up Pittsburgh Pirates. At the same time, the Phillies hopped over New York into the first division.

The Phils, who now have won nine of their last 12 games, chipped in with timely baseknocks in both contests before a shirt-sleeve crowd of 21,861.

Independence Purse Closes Charles Town; 'Graw Opens Tuesday With 5 Stakes Listed

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

There's no rest for the weary bankrolls. With the Independence Day Purse topping the program, Charles Town's long meeting comes to an end today.

Tomorrow the ease of the people vs. the horse will transfer to Havre de Grace as Maryland opens its first major track summer meeting, conflicting with the harness gentry at Laurel.

The popular "Graw," trying to avoid counter turf attractions in New Jersey and Delaware, decided to horn in on what is traditionally "half-mile racing" time in the Free State. The big time sport is listed for 10 days through Saturday July 17.

The track on the south bank of the Susquehanna River will offer five stakes during the short span of action, a list arranged by Maj-Gen. Milton A. Reckord, president, and Charles J. McLennan, who doubles as general manager and racing secretary.

Opening day attraction tomorrow will be the $10,000 added Philadelphia Handicap at six furlongs and as usual this sprint promises to be eagerly sought. On the first Saturday, 2-year-olds will hold the spotlight in the $7500 Eastern Shore Stakes.

Scheduled to have their innings on Wednesday, July 14, are the 3-year-olds with $10,000 added being offered for the Potomac Stakes.

The final day of the session, a week from next Saturday, will be a double-barreled affair. Older horses will take a crack at $15,000 added in the Havre de Grace Handicap, while juveniles will vie for $5000 in the Havre de Grace Breeders Stakes for Maryland foals.

Major track fans in this section will have their first chance to play daily doubles since Pimlico's closing. Garden State and Delaware Park abandoned the popular twin wager.

The 'Graw will operate the double as usual on the first and second races, the windows closing at 2 p. m. daylight time, 15 minutes before post time for the first event.

When the 'Graw meeting ends, the Maryland minor tracks will swing into action. The line-up: Cumberland, July 20 to 31; Hagerstown, August 3 to 14; Marlboro, August 18 to 28; Timonium, September 1 to 11; Belair, September 15 to 25.

Laurel begins the major track fall sessions on September 30, going until October 28. Pimlico opens October 29 and closes November 12, with Bowie dates from November 15 through November 27. Racing closes for the year in this section with Charles Town holding sway from November 29 until December 18.

Area Entries Both Lose in Phila. Regatta

Philadelphia, July 4.—Two Washington area entries tried for titles in the combined people's and seventy-fourth annual national rowing regatta here today, but neither was successful.

Old Dominion Boat Club of Alexandria ran into the Vesper Boat Club in the national senior quad sculls and with Jack Kelly, jr., recognized in many quarters as the world's No. 1 oarsman, at stroke, Vesper won as it pleased.

Vesper hit the finish line in 6 minutes 45 and 3/5 seconds, ahead by a length and a half over Old Dominion, the only other crew in the race.

In the boat for Old Dominion were John T. Davis, Dave Thompson, Milt Routzahn and Lou Weiners, stroke, the runner-ups were deadlocked at 6.49 and 3/5

Earle D. Brimmer, of the Potomac Boat Club, took third place in the junior singles of the People's regatta. Brimmer had trouble steering a straight course and he finished three lengths behind the victor, Millard Brown, of the Bachelors Barge Club, and a length and a half back of Anson Baker, of the Nereid Boat Club of Belleville, N. J. The winning time was 8 minutes, 3 seconds.

Brimmer didn't have much difficulty in taking his preliminary heat. He covered the mile and one-quarter course in 8 minutes, 23.8 seconds to edge out A. Baker and Joe Murphy, New Rochelle, N. Y.

Old Dominion was scheduled to compete in a heat of the junior quad sculls but as the Alexandria crew reached the starting line they learned that the New York A. C., one of its rivals, had broken a rigger. So the heat was postponed until tomorrow morning.

Laurel Bars Driver 15 Days

Driver-Owner Frank A. Albertson of Hampton, Va., yesterday was barred for 15 days from racing at the Laurel Harness Raceway for "improper conduct and the use of improper language to race officials," it was announced by Wayne Groves, steward representing the Maryland Racing Commission.

Albertson was found guilty of the stated charges by a board of inquiry which included Groves; Glenn Rublee, clerk of the course at Laurel; George Cook, associate judge; and L. L. Trice, representative of the United States Trotting Association.

Albertson had been "on probation" for a similar offense at Tappahannock, Va., last February, according to Cook.

The action taken by the Laurel board is subject to review by the United States Trotting Association which imposed the probation, Cook added.

Three Albertson horses automatically were scratched from tonight's racing as a result of the suspension. They are Waverly Sabrina and Scott Protector an entry in the second race, and Jean Guy, entered in the fourth race.

D. C.-Owned Horse Wins At Culpeper

Culpeper, Va., July 4.—Bonne Fille, owned by Robert C. Lee of Washington, D. C., won the modified Olympia class and placed third in the $350 jumper stake yesterday in second day trials of the annual Horse Show here today.

Ridden by her owner, the chestnut mare sired by Liz Whitney's Bon Nuit took first honors from Hi Rock Farm's Lady's Maid which had scored consistently yesterday.

Robert Fairburn's Sun Boss, being shown under direction of Mrs. Raymond Barbin further increased his lead in the conformation hunter division by winning the thoroughbred hunter class.

Sun Boss now holds a comparatively safe lead with a total of 16½ points. Reserve position is shared by Eve Prime's Middleburg, Virginia entry Eve's Star and Mrs. Page Jennings' Charlottesville, Va., horse, Icecapade, with 7 points each to their credit.

The green hunter picture remains the same with no classes in this division being offered today. Mrs. Gregory McIntosh's Joseph's Coat leads with 7½ points and the conformation hunter leader in the reserve spot with 4 points.

Another Washington area horse making impressive victory to carry on the serious threat of all metropolitan entries was Ballantrae's good looking black gelding, Jeb Stuart, who had a perfect round with Arlington, Virginia's Dorathy Craig in the irons to win the well filled half-bred hunter class.

Hogan, Harrison Tie at 275 For Title; In Playoff Today

Detroit, July 4 (AP).—Dutch Harrison and Ben Hogan were all locked up in a tie today for the $2600 top prize of the Motor City Open Golf Championship with 72 holes of 275, 9 under par.

Hogan, who closed with his second straight 66, and Harrison, who finished with a 4-under-par 67, will play it off over 18 holes Monday.

Harrison, 38-year-old "Arkansas Traveler" from Albuquerque, N. Mex., who was tied with Bobby Locke of South Africa for the three quarters lead, came home first with his 35, 32—67, finishing with six straight one-putt greens for his 275.

While Harrison was sweating it out in the locker room, Hogan went to work to catch him, firing 5 birdies and 13 pars for his 5-under-par 66, missing a 20-foot putt on the eighteenth green that would have returned him the winner.

Hogan, the National Open and PGA champion, was "mister ice water" as he methodically overhauled the ambling Harrison with the aid of a birdie at the 507-yard seventeenth where he was putting an eagle three but missed from 35 feet. He played cautiously for his par four at the 330-yard eighteenth to clinch the deadlock.

Winner of Monday's playoff (1 p. m. EST) will pick up a check for $2600 while the loser will pocket $1900.

Johnny Palmer, 29-year-old Badin, N. C., professional, shot the hottest round of the week, a six under par 31-24—65 with nine birdies, in the final round to deadlock Marty Furgol, California blond from Albuquerque, N. Mex., for third place at 278.

North East Wins First Half Crown in National City Loop

Paul Schaefer fashioned a two-hit 9-2 victory over Philco Radio yesterday to give North East Body Works the first half championship of the National City League in a game played on the Ellipse before a holiday gathering estimated at 5000

Schaefer struck out 12 and walked one. His teammates' three errors had him in trouble once when the losers took a 1-0 lead into the third inning.

No other National City League games were scheduled yesterday.

Sunnybrook Titlest

Ted Creer batted in three runs with a triple, double and single as Sunnybrook won the first-half championship of the Prince Georges County A League yesterday, downing Silver Hill, 19-7. Maryland Sport Club beat Fort Carroll, 7-3, and Campus Club edged out Dixie Pig, 11-10, in other A League games.

Unbeaten Jet Motors clinched the first-half title in the Prince Georges B League by virtue of a 4-1 triumph over Maryland Aces. Bud Miles shut out the winners for six innings with no hits, then allowed three hits and all the Jet runs in the eighth.

Lorton in Finals

Percy Greenstreet's triple in the fourth inning sparked a three-run Lorton rally that led to a 6-3 victory over Jermantown yesterday at Mount Vernon in the semifinals of the northern Virginia playoffs for the National Baseball Congress tournament.

Lorton will oppose Fort Belvoir at 3 p. m. today at Mount Vernon for the right to go to the State playoffs at Charlottesville, July 14-15.

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Kluttz

New Secretary Gets Congressman A 'Pear' All Right

STORY: A member of Congress who has the reputation of being the most cantankerous and suspicious man on Capitol Hill, hired himself a new secretary shortly before Congress adjourned. As you'll understand, the girl was strange to the ways of Congress and its members.

Her new boss was to make a speech in New York. Shortly before he was to catch his train, a roll call on an important bill was ordered in the House. He dashed to the phone en route to Union Station and bluntly ordered his secretary:

"I've got to get my train and the House is having a roll call. Now listen, get me a pair right away."

That was all. No explanation. The secretary was bewildered, but orders were orders. She rushed out of her office; grabbed a cab, and got to Union Station in the nick of time to present her new employer with not one, but a basketful of—yes, PEARS.

The excited Congressman nearly had a stroke on the spot.

PS: The GOP Congressman would have voted for the bill in question. He wanted his secretary to find a Democrat who was also absent and who would have voted against the bill to have the Congressional Record show he was for the measure.

VETERANS Administration has funds to hire about 1000 new employes to pay out dividends on its GI insurance billion-dollar surplus. Congress gave it an appropriation of $2,850,000 for the tremendous clerical task. VA estimated it would need 2700 employes for the project.

RETIREMENT: Congress next year will be asked to permit munitions makers, test pilots and other Federal workers in hazardous occupations to retire at 50 after 20 years of service. Bills to this effect already have been drawn.

Over the weekend the President signed into law the Hagen bill which permits about 15,000 employes who investigate, apprehend, and detain criminals to retire at 50 after 20 years of service. Covered by the law are:

Treasury agents, postal inspectors, border patrolmen, prison guards, Secret Service agents, Customs inspectors, Immigration and Naturalization agents and FBI agents. A similar measure for FBI agents was enacted a year ago. However, the new law supersedes it.

STORY: The pay raise bill is now the law of the land. The President's signature on it will end the speculation and rumors among Federal workers that it was to be vetoed.

I've had many unusual experiences in my 10 years of writing a column for Federal workers, but something out of this world happened to me late Friday afternoon. I went to the General Accounting Office to get a copy of the new Federal salary table which will show each employe how he'll be affected by the pay increase and the increased retirement deduction.

I overheard several employes in the corridor singing the blues about the President. They said the President would veto the pay bill. Trying to cheer them up, I told them:

"The President will sign the bill. He'll do it tomorrow."

They gave me that superior what-the-hell look. One pulled me aside and confided:

"Now this is off the record, but the President is going to veto the bill. That's the inside word. One of our fellows knows Jerry Kluttz who just told him the pay bill was to be vetoed, and Jerry knows what is going to happen."

I pulled off my hat to show them my trade mark—my bald head—in hopes they would recognize me. When they didn't, I answered:

"I'm sure Jerry didn't say that; why, he just had in this column today that the President would sign it. Someone must be wrong."

They insisted the veto was a new development and they kept saying that Kluttz knew what he was going on. I bowed out to catch my waiting cab when I found myself being critical of myself.

NOTE: This is a message to GAO employes I argued with: "Hey fellows, that was me."

TABLE: And now about that pay table—it will be published in this column tomorrow. The table will show each employe the amount of his biweekly pay check under the pay and retirement changes and how it will be computed.

PAY: Every one seems to be dissatisfied with the new Federal salary scale. The President's two-fisted attack on the pay raise bill was entirely justified. The bill was a sloppy piece of legislation and House Majority Leader Charles Halleck and Senator Byrd (D., Va.) must accept the responsibility for its main weaknesses.

Meantime, half a dozen groups will study the Federal pay problem. Among them are: The House and Senate Civil Service Committee, the Hoover committee which is studying reorganization of the Federal Government, the Budget Bureau and the Civil Service Commission.

Congress will make the committee studies; the President will order Civil Service and Budget to do a wage survey, and the Hoover committee is entirely independent. The Hoover report will go to both the President and the Congress.

Potomac Basin Pollution Fight Hangs on Fund

Interstate Group Awaits Congress Appropriation Act

Efforts to clear the Potomac River Basin of pollution will be spurred under the Water Pollution Control Act, signed into law last week, if Congress authorizes an appropriation large enough to make the control program effective.

The Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin, which two years ago set up a program of "project priorities" for the pollution work, favored passage of the bill. It authorizes the Federal Government to help individual States by providing technical and financial aid.

The Interstate Commission, which was organized in 1921, is now financed by Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia and the District of Columbia. It is fitting its own program into the Federal pattern in order to participate in funds which are made available under the program.

It also is preparing estimates of the sum needed to free the river of pollution. On a national basis, the United States Public Health Service two years ago estimated such costs at nearly four billion dollars.

The act, first specific Federal legislation aimed at cleaning up the Nation's streams, authorizes $22,500,000 every year for the next five for loans to State or interstate agencies for pollution work. The loans can cover up to a third of the estimated cost of plans and construction, to a $250,000 per project limit.

Among top priority projects which the Interstate Commission is advocating to halt Potomac pollution is construction of sewage treatment facilities at Cumberland, Ridgely, Keyser, Piedmont, Western Port and Luke.

The commission priority list calls for construction of intercepting sewers and adequate treatment plants for Alexandria and Fairfax Counties.

How much Federal aid the Potomac River Basin Commission could expect would depend on congressional authorizations up to the $22,500,000 maximum per year.

Under terms of the Pollution Control Act, work is to be done on the basis of major river basins. Fourteen river basin offices will implement the program in their respective watersheds.

The work will be backed up by the Public Health Service in Washington, survey parties in the field and research facilities.

Major Problem

Women Nip Too Heavily, Is Charge

The "female bar fly" today is one of America's major problems.

There is one woman to every two men in average attendance in taverns, although a few years ago the average attendance in taverns was one woman to five men.

These were some of the charges leveled against the liquor industry yesterday at a temperance rally by Seventh-Day Adventists in Takoma Park. The rally was held in conjunction with the camp meeting of the Potomac Conference. The approximately 2000 persons who attended adopted two resolutions opposing the liquor industry.

Groceries Held Saloons

W. A. Scharffenburg, executive secretary of the American Temperance Society, who keynoted the rally, declared the liquor industry is converting "the corner grocery store into a saloon."

Scharffenburg said that propaganda put out by the liquor industry to induce and entice the women of America to drink has had its effect. He added that community action to restrict drinking among women is "being demanded by an ever increasing number of people."

He further charged that the liquor industry is encouraging and inviting the youth of America, who have never even tasted beer, in "to have a drink."

Abstinence Urged

Those at the rally went on record as reaffirming the denomination's historical position that "the only platform Christians can conscientiously stand on regarding the liquor question is one of total abstinence."

They also adopted a resolution favoring enactment of legislation that would prohibit "any man running for public office who is engaged in the manufacture, distribution or sale of alcoholic beverages."

Woman Denies Sullivan a Tenant

Mrs. Richard Burian Gardner of 4611 Hillside rd. se. told The Washington Post last night that Joseph H. Sullivan, a former Army officer accused of a number of holdups, does not live at her address.

Although the Hillside address was given by police as Sullivan's, Mrs. Gardner said Sullivan had stayed at her home only briefly about five months ago.

Sullivan is being held under $10,000 bond on a robbery charge.

Va. Auto Test Methods Draw Official Fire

Hasty Inspections, Overcharges for Repairs Are Cited

Virginia's system of "farming out" State auto inspections to local garages may "lead to serious abuses," Mrs. Florence Cannon, Arlington County Board member, said yesterday.

Present inspection methods, she declared, may menace auto safety or lead to citizens being "gouged" by inspecting garages.

Mrs. Cannon is leading an Arlington County Board move to gather more information on Virginia's auto inspection system.

Stations Held Qualified

In a letter to the board last Saturday, the Virginia Division of Motor Vehicles said the 24 officially designated inspection stations in Arlington, like the others in the State, had been selected on the basis of their qualification to do the work.

The letter blamed the deadline jam at inspection stations June 15 on the failure of citizens to have the check made earlier.

Mrs. Cannon said yesterday that such last-minute jams may result in autos being "rushed through inspection" without an adequate safety check.

And she said numerous cases of repair "gouging" by inspecting garages had been reported to her, including that of a motorist who was told at one station he must spend $86 to get his car in shape.

Not satisfied, he took his car to another inspection station, paid their $7.50 bill for repairs, and received his inspection sticker.

Would Stagger Tests

To correct these "abuses," Mrs. Cannon said the State may have to:

1. Stagger the time of inspections, as the District does, by assigning people in a certain area numbers which will indicate when they will be called for their check.

2. Correct any tendency of garages to "gouge" on repair bills by assigning State or local officials to make a check of the different inspection stations.

Parks Gain Visitors, Lee House Loses

Though National Parks in nearby Virginia are generally attracting more visitors this year, the Lee Mansion in Arlington National Cemetery seems to be less popular as a sightseeing attraction.

John W. Drowns, principal guard at the mansion for the last seven years, believes he knows the reason for the figures released by the National Park Service.

These show considerable gains in vistors for the Shenandoah, Richmond National Battlefield, Fredericksburg and Spotsylvania, Manassas, and Wakefield (Washington's birthplace) national parks in the eight months ending May 31, as compared with the corresponding period a year before.

But the Lee Mansion had only 159,000 visitors in the period, about 8500 fewer than toured the historic house during the same previous period.

"It's the soldiers," said Drowns. "A year or two ago, 50 per cent of our visitors were servicemen. Now, there just aren't many of them around, it seems. Also, we've had some bad weather this year."

But Drowns was not disheartened, even as he found the figures for January through June were 9500 lower than last year, and in June itself there were 3375 fewer visitors than last year.

"We'll make it up all right," he said confidently. "I think we'll have over 3000 today. Anyway, considering we don't have the soldiers any more, I think we're doing pretty well."

ment in the finest tradition of the late Claudia Muzio.

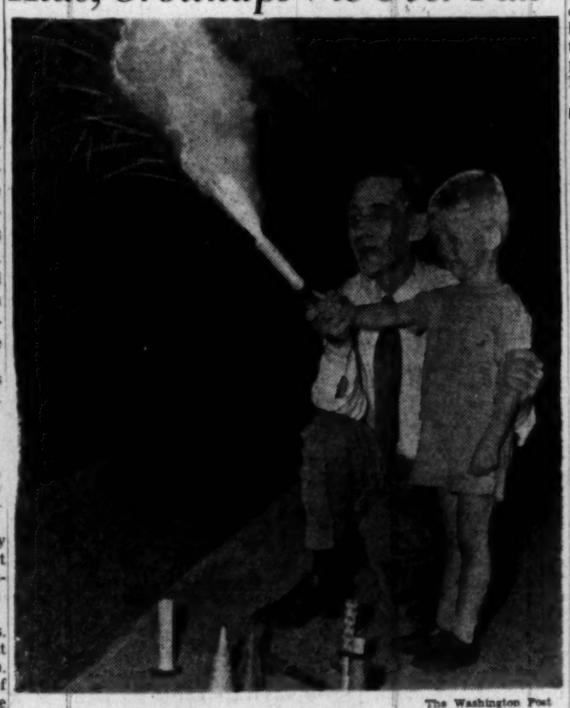
Dorothy Maynor has always been willing to work hard to bring to the fore the finest in American songs. Last night she offered two excellent songs by Karol Rathaus, and repeated Samuel Barber's stunning "I Hear An Army Marching" which she sang here two years ago.

The orchestra under the young American conductor responded to his easy authority with thrilling effect. Mitchell's supreme musicianship is apparent in the thrilling rhythmic structure of such things as the Barber and Rathaus songs, and in Morton Gould's American Salute. His sense of color comes to the fore in poetic work of which Mary Howe's Dirge was an eloquent example.

Mitchell compels superb results from his players, and thus elicits enthusiastic response from his hearers. Proving his gifts to be versatile, he gave Miss Maynor some of the most sensitive orchestral accompaniment we have ever heard, in works of unusual complexity.

Wednesday evening: All-orchestral program, with the Beethoven Fifth Symphony.

Kids, Grownups Vie Over Fun



The Washington Post

Philip Chiera, 4, gets helping hand from his uncle, Albert Chiera of 1637 Harvard st. nw., in celebrating July 4

It couldn't get dark fast enough last night for the city's small fry, because everybody knows you can't have fun with sparklers and torches and colored lights until night has fallen.

But night fell at last, and all over town it was a toss-up as to who was having more fun—the kids or their parents. You could drive along any residential street and see the bobbing, waving sparklers and the brilliant, multicolored torches.

Police were busy nearly all night answering complaints on explosive-type fireworks, which are illegal in the District.

Over at 1601 Argonne pl. nw., a dozen children from 3 to 11 years of age, however were having a bang-up time in a perfectly legal manner. Eyes popped as the "Number 2 Vesuvius Fountain" shot a cascade of stars into the dark night.

Mrs. Joseph T. Dixon of the Argonne pl. address, kept one eye on her children, Kathy, 9, and Joan, 5. She explained that they had been "waiting patiently for dark to come since 8 p. m."

When the "Vesuvius" zoomed skyward, 8-year-old Neil Barnett, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Diamond, also of 1601 Argonne pl. nw., exclaimed: "It shoots just exactly like a fountain."

A short distance away, at 1637 Harvard st. nw., adults and children lined the front steps to watch a display of their own. Four-year-old Philip Chiera and his uncle, Albert Chiera, teamed up to shoot off a Roman candle. The child wasn't half so interested as the uncle.

Rock Creek Park Police Watch Section Where Girl Was Slain

Under the theory of the criminal returning to the scene of his crime, a special detail of park policemen yesterday patroled the Rock Creek Park section where the body of Carol Bardwell, 11, was found a week ago yesterday.

The police, working ceaselessly, took suspects into custody only to release them for lack of evidence.

In addition, no murder weapon has been found that might point the way toward the criminal who raped and cut the throat of the Sacred Heart Academy student.

And, so far as is known, no suspicious fingerprints have been found on the bicycle ridden by the little girl on the day of her death.

Authorities have been deluged with tips—all of which have proved worthless so far.

In one instance, police revealed yesterday, Lorton authorities last Friday received an anonymous phone call—the caller inquiring if "bloodhounds could trace a trail a week old."

"I want to know if bloodhounds could pick up my trail at the scene of the murder of the little girl in Rock Creek Park to where I am now," the caller was quoted. Then—after a pause—"Oh! No! I don't mean that . . . " and the phone call ended.

Investigation could determine only that the call was made from a Washington phone booth. Police said bloodhounds were valueless in this case since there was no article of the criminal's clothing for them to scent.

Men with bloody faces and shirts have been reported a number of times but police have been unable to authenticate any of the reports.

Some of the tips have been undoubtedly sincere, others the product of hysteria or the work of cranks. But, police, unwilling to let any angle pass that might break the case, have dug into them all—to no avail.

Meanwhile, in the laboratories of the FBI and the District Morgue, analysis continues. It is the hope of the men in this work that eventually a hair—perhaps a fingernail scraping — a thumbprint — may bring the criminal to justice.

2 Stowaways From France May Remain

By Robert P. Jordan
Post Reporter

America may yet be the land of freedom for two stowaway French lads, now at the National Training School for Boys.

Because of their faith in this country—Gilbert, 16, has made six illegal entries, and Marcel, 15, has smuggled himself in four times—efforts by private citizens and Federal officials alike were under way yesterday to permit the boys to remain.

Assistant Attorney General A. Devitt Vanech said he would do "everything he could" to help. That includes review of their case with Attorney General Clark, followed by consultation with the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

According to Harold E. Hegstrom, training school director, the Attorney General is "very favorably disposed to help." Clark met the lads recently at a visit to the school.

Vanech warned the Immigration and Naturalization Service may not permit them to stay because of fears of "opening the door" to similar cases.

As matters stand now, the lads will be deported when their year at the school is up. They were sent there to discourage them from stowing away.

The Bureau of Prisons, seeking a "remedy" to prevent their deportation, has sent a query to the INS, director James V. Bennett disclosed yesterday. He said his office wants to know the "formalities" necessary to give the boys entrance.

The Assistant Attorney General outlined two possible answers to the problem. One, he said, is to "pre-examine" the boys on their citizenship qualifications and then let them legally enter the United States again from another country.

They could be sent to Canada, for instance, with permission of the Canadian government, and then returned to this country legally.

The other way, Vanech said, is for Congress to pass a special law permitting them to remain.

In any event, the boys must have a U. S. citizen sponsor them, perhaps by adoption, perhaps by making a foster-home for them.

Meanwhile, as a result of a story which ran in The Washington Post July 2, the National Training School for Boys has received numerous phone calls and visits from people who want to help the young Frenchmen.

Superintendent Hegstrom said "at least six or eight" couples have come to the school to see them, some with adoption in mind.

"They had almost no education in France," he said. "They're really enthusiastic about getting an education here." And, said Hegstrom, if they are deported again, "both will keep on trying to get back here."

He said the "happiest days of their lives" had been when they made friends with soldiers in France during the war. From that sprang their resolve to live here. Both are war orphans, and each has smuggled himself into the United States separately.

Among the citizens who are pulling for the lads is G. Howland Shaw, former Assistant Secretary of State. Shaw said yesterday he has been trying for the past month to help them. He has interested people of French extraction in New York in them, he said.

Thieves removed a total of $1500 in cash and $550 in stamps from the Barr Building offices of American Services Exchange, 910 17th st. nw., it was discovered yesterday.

Originally it was believed only $241 in cash and stamps had been removed when file cabinets and desks were discovered pried open early Saturday. A later check, however, revealed the larger amount missing.

The loot included a number of early American coins, police said.

The American Services Exchange is headed locally by Broward McClellan, Baronet Apts., 18th and H sts. nw., a former Army flier. McClellan was known as "Bo" McClellan when he was a football star at the University of Florida and with the Philadelphia Eagles in the 1930s.

Two men in khaki uniforms slugged a District cab driver late last night and left hm lying in nearby Maryland woods, making off with his cab and $13.

When he regained consciousness after the slugging, Gienan hailed a motorist, he said, who took him to police and Suburban Hospital. Three stitches were sewn in his scalp and he was released.

Fake Radio Messages On Planes Laid to Boy

FCC Tracks Down Mysterious Pleas Of Distress Heard Here Since June 23

The operator of the radio station which has been sending false airplane distress messages to Bolling Field is a 17-year-old boy living in Northeast Washington.

This was disclosed yesterday by a spokesman for the Federal Communications Commission which set out to track down the mysterious mocking air voice on June 23 after receiving a complaint from Bolling.

Field engineers of the FCC, accompanied by a deputy marshal, entered the boy's house Saturday, found an illegal radio station and, with the consent of the boy's parents, dismantled the offending equipment.

No arrest was made, the FCC spokesman said, but the case is being referred to the Department of Justice for possible action. Violation of radio control regulations carries a possible penalty of two years in jail and a fine of $10,000.

Also implicated was a 19-year-old boy living in the neighborhood who helped transmit the illegal signals, according to the FCC official.

Mobile and "fixed" FCC stations combined to locate the unlicensed air voice. Within a week they had tracked down the voice, thanks in part to the clews provided by the air voice which taunted them for not being able to locate the station. No action was taken until Saturday, however, to give FCC monitors a chance to assemble additional evidence about the operation of the outlaw station.

In addition to the sending equipment operating from the house, the FCC sleuths found surplus war material and some home-made radio apparatus. They also found evidence that the boy had built a transmitter for an automobile which could have been used to hoax the Washington police radio, the commission spokesman said.

The commission spokesman declined to release the names of the two youths or to speculate as to whether prosecution will be asked.

"That will be up to the Department of Justice," he said. "Sending these signals is a very serious matter. They disrupt the field tower operations and could cause an accident."

The case was the first of its kind in the District area in recent memory. During the fiscal year just ended, FCC tracked down 122 cases of unlicensed operation in the United States, the spokesman said.

The youths could have had a "ham" license as amateurs if they had applied to the commission and met the required standards, the spokesman said. He pointed out that the commission is on record as encouraging youthful enterprise in the radio field and has given licenses to many youngsters.

Man Found In Closed Garage Dies

Howard Arthur Smith, 40, died yesterday shortly after he was found unconscious in the front seat of his automobile.

The car was parked with the ignition turned on in the closed basement garage at his home, 322 Oglethorpe st. nw.

He was pronounced dead at Casualty Hospital after rescue squad attendants had failed to revive him.

Smith, a painter, was found by his father, John H. Smith, 3340 8th pl. se., about noon.

Police quoted his father as saying that, having found lights on in the house but no one there, he looked in the garage. His son was dressed in slacks and a shirt.

Smith's wife, Mrs. Caroline Smith, and her mother, Mrs. Dorothy Horn, who lives at the Smith home, arrived home after discovery of the body.

Though the car's ignition was still turned on when Smith was found, the engine was not running and the gasoline tank indicator showed a quarter of a tank of fuel remaining, according to police.

The victim, a lifelong resident of Washington, served for 3½ years in the Seabees in the Pacific as a chief painter. He attended Jefferson Junior High School, and had lived in the three-story brick structure on Oglethorpe st. since it was built 12 years ago.

Neighbors said Smith appeared to be a cheerful, happy person. Mr. and Mrs. Smith had no children.

Monkey Celebrates Independence Day

Peppe, monkey pet of Mrs. Ethel Cauffmann, 420 7th st. se., yesterday celebrated Independence Day with a brave effort at life, liberty and pursuit of happiness.

He chewed his way out of the bonds (a rope) that confined him to the back yard of the Cauffmann residence and was gone with supersonic simian speed.

A block away, Michael J. McCormick, 647 S. Carolina ave. se., was pursuing happiness in his own way—quietly perusing the newspaper in the coolness of his own backyard.

Suddenly a sinewy bundle of fur dropped from a grapevine—kerplunk into McCormick's lap. The unexpected visitor was Peppe.

Not caring particularly for guests who drop in uninvited and spoil a quiet Sunday, McCormick called police. But by the time the bluecoats arrived, Peppe had returned home.

The monkey, a gift to the Cauffmanns from a seaman who had picked it up in South Africa, created a furor last week when it fled its abode and went capering over nearby roof tops.

Palmer Picks Boggs

Representative J. Caleb Boggs (R., Del.) was selected by Radio Broadcaster Charles Palmer yesterday as the "Congressman of the year."

The selection, sponsored by the Alexandria Gazette, was made from 1rst-term Congressmen regardless of party. It was based on service to the country and his own district, general character, leadership and other factors.

Aid to Blind Increased

Prince Georges County Tuesday will join the growing list of places assisting the Maryland Workshop for the Blind in placing blind persons in income-earning niches.

A cigar, newspaper, soft drink and candy stand has been erected at the entrance of the county courthouse at Upper Marlboro, Md.

The stand will be tended by Miss Sue Perkins of Bowie, Md., who will be able to serve her customers because merchandise will be kept in the same position at all times so she will know from touch what she is handing out.

Authority to erect the stand was given more than a year ago by Prince Georges County commissioners but illness of Miss Perkins and other difficulties caused postponement. The stand will be open Tuesday.

Happily Married

A Belgian girl and a Fort Meade, Md., soldier were a happily married couple yesterday after a last-minute, preacher-to-preacher dash in Annapolis to beat the expiration date on the girl's visa.

The girl, pretty Miss Jean Van Wiert, 25, of Brussels and Pvt. Clarence R. Steelman met a few weeks ago at Fort Meade. They fell in love. Saturday they decided to get married.

But Miss Van Wiert, in the United States on a temporary visa, found she would have to leave July 6 unless her marriage to Steelman went through.

All day Saturday, the couple rushed from one Annapolis minister to another. Five ministers, representing four denominations, told them they would have to wait—their marriage was too "hasty." The sixth, the Rev. W. C. Wood, heard their story, liked the young couple, and performed the ceremony late Saturday evening.

He now will return to his original office in the corporation counsel's office.

Mrs. Kate Cook, 85, formerly of Round Hill, Va., and for the past 16 years a resident of Chevy Chase, Md., was killed almost instantly yesterday when she fell down a flight of stairs at the home of friends in Edgewater Beach, Md.

Mrs. Cooke was visiting relatives of her nephew's wife for the holiday weekend and apparently became confused and mistakenly opened a door in their home leading to the stairs, according to Dr. John M. Claffy, Anne Arundel County medical examiner, who issued a certificate of death from accidental causes.

Mrs. Cooke was pronounced dead on arrival at Annapolis Hospital. Her neck was broken in the fall, Dr. Claffy said.

Mrs. Cooke was a native of and had resided in King George County, Va., until the death of her husband, Lewis Cooke, 16 years ago, when she came to Chevy Chase to reside with a nephew, Almer L. Mann, 4613 Norwood dr., her only survivor.

Runs Right Into Police

James Brooks, 39, of 909 O st. nw., wasn't entirely satisfied, police said, with the $60 he allegedly had helped take from Abraham Bartley, 32, of 332 E st. se., Saturday in a confidence game.

So, armed with half a brick, police reported, Brooks chased Bartley in an effort to get the latter's last $18. The pair ran right into the arms of Second Precinct Detectives J. D. Loughrin, T. M. Hughes and P. H. Hutsler, who were cruising near the scene—an alley between 10th and 11th and M and N sts. nw.

Four other men involved in the alleged incident got away, police said. Brooks was charged with assault and attempted robbery.

Ask Anne — About Wooden Salad Bowls

I have a set of six myrtlewood salad bowls. Would you tell me how to clean same after use?
E. I. H.

Wash the bowls soon after use so that salad dressings do not penetrate the wood. Use warm water, a mild soap, rinse with warm water and immediately dry thoroughly. Avoid using very hot water on them and never allow water to stand in them or on them. Store in a dry place.

Can you help me in locating the proper organization, or some worthy family, who could take advantage of using a backbrace we no longer need? They are quite expensive and we would like to locate someone who might need one but find it a real hardship to buy. I think with adjustments it could be successfully used by another person, of a slender build. R. E. B.

It seems that most braces are made to exact prescription but it has been suggested that the materials in the brace could be used in constructing another. In discussing this with the Crippled Children's Clinic of the Health Department, they suggested you might turn it over to the orthopedic firm which makes braces for them, with the understanding that the materials be used in constructing a brace for an under-privileged child. The orthopedic company can be contacted by calling Metropolitan 0500.

I have tried unsuccessfully in several local bookstores to purchase a copy of "Cours d'economie politique" by Gide et Rist, in French. Have you any suggestions about where I might locate this book? E. E.

Since the book you refer to is a textbook, bookstores do not seem to carry it in stock. However, a book store on F st. has said you can order it from the publisher through them. You can reach this store by calling National 0613.

If your family just isn't interested in breakfast on hot, sticky mornings, try tempting lagging appetites with a choice of chilled fruit for the morning cereal. Serve the breakfast in help-yourself style, with a pitcher of cold milk, cereal, blueberries, bananas, and other fruit ready and waiting

The basement of our new home is very damp, some of the dampness may be due to the overhead waterpipes sweating in warm weather, but the basement is very deep—entirely below ground level. We want to put asphalt tile on the floor and then pine panelling on the walls for a recreation room. What could be done about the dampness first to assure a usable, dry room afterwards? We plan to open a heat duct down there before winter. E. E.

Taking for granted that the basement has been made waterproof in construction, your present problem is one of condensation. Since it is in contact with the cool earth outside, the masonry is cooler than the interior air, causing condensation. This can be prevented by a lining which will keep the inside pine panelling from contact with the masonry walls. Plaster board, set on furring strips an inch or so thick will provide an air space. Should there be signs of dampness in the walls, the inner surfaces should be coated with liquid asphalt or tar before applying the lining. This will also prevent moisture from, in time, ruining the lining and pine paneling.

Setting the asphalt tile in a bed of asphalt cement will make it waterproof and permanent. Probably the water pipes will be insulated in the process of refinishing the room so this will help to eliminate moisture from this source.

In a new basement, especially with outside waterproofing, the cement is slow in drying. Since the moisture in the cement can only escape through the cellar, the cellar may seem very damp. In fact, it may look as though there was actual leakage. Since drying is not complete until some months after the heater has been started, it is usually a good plan to delay pine paneling until the cement has had ample chance to dry.

Could you tell me a store in Washington that has in stock English Bone China in the Dunrobin pattern? I know one department store carries it, but have not had it in stock for four years. I. D. F.

The buyer of the china department of the department store which carried the Dunrobin has just returned from a trip to England and says that that particular factory is so far behind in filling orders that they have no hope of receiving the pattern this year. As each pattern is sold in a city exclusively by one store, your only chance of perhaps getting it sooner would be through a store in another city which handles the pattern.

I have a transparent plastic raincoat, a seam of which came open. Is there a place in Washington which would repair this coat or else what can I do myself to repair it? The seams are not sewn but seem to be glued. (Neither cement nor tape helped). H. L.

If your raincoat is made of vinolyte plastic—and many of them are—the seam can be sealed by applying heat. Set the iron to the temperature used for rayons and press only the seam. Be very sure the iron is not too hot.

I frequently iron starched uniforms and always have trouble with the starch sticking to the iron. Can you tell me how to prevent this or how to remove the starch from the iron? H. L.

Starch will not stick to the iron so readily if, when cooking it, you will let it simmer a few minutes until transparent. Also, adding a wax-like product to the starch as it boils helps the iron to move more smoothly over the surface. This product is usually displayed in grocery stores near the laundry starches. It comes in a small box, contains a little bluing, and has a pleasing fragrance. Remember, too, that when clothes are ironed without first being allowed to dry thoroughly (and then sprinkled), starch sometimes sticks to the iron.

To remove burned-on starch, go over the cold sole plate of the iron with a scratchless scouring powder applied with a soft cloth. When all deposit is removed, rinse and dry. If the deposit accumulates as you iron and you wish to remove it without allowing the iron to cool, touch the hot iron to a bar of paraffin or wax, immediately rubbing it onto a several thicknesses of newspaper. Continue until the iron is clean. (Never apply a wet cloth to a hot iron or you may get a painful steam burn.)

New Furniture At Lower Price Goes on Display

Chicago, July 4 (AP).—The annual summer furniture and home furnishings market will open here Monday, stimulated by the prospect that retail sales of furniture alone will hit the $3,500,000,000 mark this year.

Lawrence H. Whitling, president of the American Furniture Mart, said he based his estimate of retail furniture sales volume on the expectation that each of the 34 million families in the United States will buy an average of at least $100 worth of new furniture this year.

"Furniture in the lower and medium price brackets has appeared in answer to the tremendous demand of lower income groups," he said.

A huge furniture display will be held in the American Furniture Mart with the merchandise mart featuring homefurnishings displays.

Manufacturers made these observations in advance of the formal opening of the markets:

"Business for the better known brand names continues to be very good and likely will be so for the balance of the year at least."

"A combination of factors—Government spending, an accelerated building program, the Marshall Plan, the military preparedness program—indicates that a shortage of materials is inevitable, although it is predicted that most consumer goods will not feel the pinch within the next six months."

"Prices will be firm and in some cases higher than at the January market, but quality and variety absent since the beginning of the war will be in evidence again."

Another manufacturer gave this picture of supply and demand:

"The demand for high priced goods is not so great as it was six or eight months ago although the public wants a better quality piece of merchandise than was the case prewar."

Several manufacturers said there is no great threat of further price increases unless there is a general spiral of prices in all commodities and consumer durable goods.

Some furniture in lower price brackets is in prospect this month. This will not represent price reduction, manufacturers say, but will result from less expensive hardware, smaller mirrors, fewer drawers or impler design.

Among new homefurnishings on display will be:

Bedroom and dining room furniture in black enamel.

A secretarial desk wtih patented disappearing correspondence rack.

Metal nursery furniture in pastel colors.

A push-button electric range.

A line of kitchen cabinets made of hardwood with sliding pastel colored opaque glass doors.

A cart which fits into a kitchen cabinet section and which can be wheeled out to bring refreshments into the living room.

New Publication Offers Suggestions For Budget Menus

Feeding a family of school-age children appetizing, nutritious meals on a budget is a difficult job, as many thousands of American mothers can testify. Practical help on this important job is offered by the United States Department of Agriculture in a new publication called "Food for Families with School Children." (AIS-71).

The new publication shows how a family with four children—two teen-agers and two children of 8 and 11 years plus their parents—may be well fed for $27 to $28 a week (March, 1948, prices). Suggestions are given for planning meals with sample menus for a week; also buying and for storing food at home to best advantage. Information also is given to help meet the special food needs of the different ages in the family.

Single copies of this publication are free from the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C.

Housekeeping Hints

When closing the house for a long time, cover all oil paintings with cheese cloth. Exposed, the dirt and dust are apt to grind into the painting and injure the fabric of the treasured work.

Those big heavy bags from the grocer's are fine for emptying the bag from the electric cleaner. Insert the cotton bag right in the paper one and get rid of the dust without any flying particles whatsoever.

Watchmakers tell us that clocks and watches should be wound at the same time each week or day if they are expected to maintain correct time. It is never wise to wind them a little at a time. Establish a time to wind your clocks and watches and see how much more reliable they are.

Almost all of us have some little corner in the living room that is not as happy and bright as the rest of the room. Brighten up this place with a small wall table over which is hung a small mirror which reflects a gay bowl or ornament on the table. It will make a huge difference in a dark spot.

When the glass oven door becomes blackened and you are unable to see the food in the oven, use baking soda as you would a soap and powder and the door will be bright and clean.

Electric light bulbs should be dusted frequently and wiped off with a damp cloth at least once a month. You will get full power of your bulb if you keep it clean.

Don't just empty ash trays; take time to wash them well and dry them. You get rid of the debris by emptying it but the odor lingers on and gives a stale smell to the room.

Married Less Than Two Years, Now Expecting Second Child, Wife Feels Face-Saving Need To Buy Home, But Husband Dreads Undertaking

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Ted and I have been married less than two years, have a lovely baby eight months old, and much to my distress we are expecting another child next January.

I am miserably in need of good counsel in the circumstances. Is it wise for a young couple with a growing family to go into debt to buy a home?

We wouldn't mind the second baby at all if we had adequate living quarters; but we are living in a crowded room in the home of an elderly couple, cousins of mine, where we share their kitchen and dining room.

I get panicky at the thought of trying to cope with two babies here, for although my cousins are dears, the arrangement is a strain on all of us and would be doubly difficult (and embarrassing to me) as our family grows.

Wife Is Optimist In Weighing Risk

THUS I feel we ought to buy a house and get settled before the second baby arrives, but Ted thinks we should wait until we have enough money saved to make a down payment, buy furniture and have a "rainy day" fund left over.

Ted is 27, an able lawyer just starting practice, and I am 25, healthy and energetic, have two college degrees and have taught as a college instructor. I am in line for another position when I can take it. We have some bonds, plus most of my earnings, hence could make a down payment on a house now, and my parents would gladly lend us furniture or the money to buy it.

Later we could rent out a room to cut expenses. I could return to teaching after finding someone to tend the children, and as Ted is a veteran, the Federal Housing Administration can help us. Ted isn't much of a "saver,"—in fact, he hasn't earned much yet—and I realize it is a gamble to incur debt without regular income; but in view of our strong potentials, I am convinced we can succeed if we go ahead. What do you think?

E. F.

Canny Public Isn't Buying

DEAR E. F.: In my opinion, there are two good reasons why this isn't the time to put the screws on Ted to buy a house.

Reason No. 1: The housing situation is beginning to loosen up in the city from which you write. In one northern suburb, 30 minutes' ride from downtown, 10,000 new home-units (houses and apartments) are nearing completion, I'm told.

Also, in a certain chic residential area 10 minutes from the heart of the city, "For Sale" signs have been posted on certain old houses for weeks, with no takers; and other home properties in the same community are privately listed for sale or for rent, with nobody grabbing at them.

In brief, it is an open secret among the observant that a buyers' market in homes is beginning to develop in your city today, as "the little people" with down-payment in pocket refuse to pay the prices asked for available merchandise. So much for that.

Money in Reserve Nourishes Morale

REASON No. 2: It is far more important to nourish Ted's self-confidence with the good bread of solvency, than to look the part of a prosperous young couple, as he struggles for a professional toehold.

He is just starting law practice, has no income to speak of, yet office expenses, family maintenance and the costs of a new baby next year are staring him in the face, so for peace of mind, which is basic to steady performance, he's simply got to have a "rainy day" fund to draw on in emergency.

I sympathize with your panicky sense of face-saving need to clear out of your cousins' home before the new baby arrives; but my advice is to keep your head, find a suburban rental and invest cautiously in essential furnishings, as a morale-building start towards a home of your own. M. H.

Salad Tray Makes Party Luncheon

Here's a salad that can be a help-yourself party luncheon or a buffet dinner salad tray, from Better Homes & Gardens magazine.

Stuff tomatoes with this Shrimp Salad. Combine 2 cups of cooked shrimp, ½ cup diced green pepper, 1 cup chopped celery, 3 hard-cooked eggs, diced, ¼ teaspoon salt, and a dash of black pepper. Sprinkle with lemon juice; moisten with myonnaise. Chill thoroughly.

Cook cauliflowrets until barely tender; season; add French dressing, and chill. Make carrot curls by cutting thin lengthwise strips. Roll each strip; fasten with a toothpick and chill in ice water. Spread half a pineapple slice with cream cheese blended with pineapple syrup, top with a second half, sandwich fashion. Chill.

When everything is cold and crisp, place the stuffed tomatoes in the center of a tray lavish with lettuce, parsley, and water cress. Arrange around the tomatoes, the pineapple sandwiches, cauliflowerets, carrot curls and deviled eggs. Be certain the vegetables are crisp, the fruits juicy, and the deviled eggs, moist and well-seasoned.

Philippine Ambassador Has Fourth of July Party

By Marie McNair

The "baby" Republic of the Philippines celebrated its second anniversary of independence yesterday along with Mr. and Mrs. U. S. A.

"Isn't it nice we have our birthdays together," observed a guest at the Philippine Embassy yesterday, as she greeted the Philippine Ambassador, Joaquin Elizalde, and the Philippine Minister-Counselor and Mrs. Narciso Ramos.

Yesterday—and it was typical Fourth of July weather—Mike Elizalde was host at a reception to honor the day and not unmindful of the heroic part his countrymen played in the great war he arranged a little ceremony to take place as the party was at its height.

Freedom Medals Awarded

Two Filipino priests—the Rev. Jaime Neri and the Rev. Pable Guzman—who helped American soldiers to escape, who rescued American pilots from certain death, were awarded the United States Medal of Freedom, with Maj. Gen. Hobart R. Gay, Commander of the Military District of Washington making the presentations.

With the town practically deserted for the long weekend a lot of people who would have been there—for Mike Elizalde is tremendously popular with both official and nonofficial folk, had sent their regrets.

I did see the Honduran Ambassador, Dr. Julian Caceres, and Senora de Caceres, who said they'll not get away before August, and the Finnish Minister, Dr. K. T. Jutila, weathering his first Washington summer, and not too happy about it all.

The Yugoslav Ambassador, Sava Kosanovic, was in top spirits, perhaps because of recent developments in his country, and I learned from Mme Thors, wife of the Icelandic Minister that she'll be off on Saturday for Iceland.

Met Col. Jim Batte and his pretty bride, Elenita, and turned around to run right into Elenita's sister, Dorothy Dyer, and Lady Berendsen, wife of the New Zealand Minister, without Sir Carl whose throat isn't yet up to the cocktail pitch.

Ray Muir, Assistant Chief of Protocol, was there with Mrs. Muir, and old friends in a huddle were Mrs. Fred Britten, back in familiar haunts, the embassy having been her home for many years; and chatting with her, Oscar Albertini and Jack Logan.

Mrs. Emil Hurja was without her husband, Marshall Diggs was without his wife. EmilHurja is ishing in northern Michigan, and Mrs. Diggs is also out of town. Representative Atilano Cinco of the Philippine House of Representatives, was there, having come to Washington with something to do with veterans legislation; and others were Dr. and Mrs. Tomas Cajigas and their daughter, Anita—now Mrs. George Mattusch, who is here from Ottawa.

Caught a glimpse of Mrs. Morris Cafritz, Mrs. Nehru, wife of the Indian charge d'affaires; Gen. and Mrs. Burdette Fitch, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris, Justice and Mrs. Bennett Champ Clark, former Attorney General and Mrs. Homer Cummings and the Ambassador of El Salvador and Senora de Castro.

John Snure, who's with the Philippine War Damage Commission, and is back on leave found old Philippine friends from the United States Army to reminisce with, and all agreed the island heat could never match Washington's hot and humid clime.

Wear Native Gowns

About the coolest looking people at the party were the Filipino ladies of the embassy staff in their filmy gowns of sheer material with low necks, long skirts and butterfly sleeves. Mrs. Ramos, wore a white frock appliqued with green and gold embroidered discs about the sleeves and peplum, and kept a beautiful hand painted fan going to stir the air about her. Mr. Ramos almost out did the ladies in both comfort and beauty. His costume was topped with the native barong tagalong, which is a hip length loose cut blouse of delicate white pina cloth with fine embroidery for which the Philippine women are famous.

BPW Club Hears Message Of Truman on Human Rights

President Truman yesterday declared that we are committed to help the people of the world preserve human rights. But to do so effectively we must safeguard and strengthen our own democratic institutions and we must strive to keep our economy healthy.

His reminder of this country's position in world affairs came in the form of a message, which was read at the opening session of the biennial convention of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs now in session in Fort Worth, Tex. The Chief Executive's statement was read by Miss Sally Butler, presiding federation head.

"It is fitting that your organization, which is to so great an extent dedicated to matters in the national interest, should be in session on Independence Day," the President wrote. "It is a good time to take stock of the position we hold in the world.

"This day in our history climaxed a long struggle by our people for basic human rights. Today, people all over the world—people from whom we spring—are looking to us to help them preserve similar human rights. We are committed to help them. To do the job effectively, we must safeguard and strengthen our democratic institutions and we must strive to keep our economy healthy.

"I know that the activities of your organization, such as your projected drive to get out a large vote in the fall, are very well keyed to these two great needs. I am convinced that as American women continue to increase their contribution to the business, professional and political life of our Nation, our prospects for lasting world peace and prosperity are proportionately enhanced. Your members are conscious of this and are doing their part."

Following the reading of the Chief Executive's statement, Miss Butler offered six new goals to the some 5000 women atending the conclave. These are as follows:

(1) To place better qualified men and women in governmental posts of responsibility.

(2) To win equal pay for comparable work for all.

(3) To encourage workers to realize the dignity and importance of work as an incentive to efficiency and greater production.

(4) To insure training of both men and women for family and community life.

(5) To strengthen and make effective our United Nations.

(6) To work toward a stable and healthy world economy.

Peaks, Piques Furnish Food for Thought

Statistics show the price of food
Has hit a brand new peak.
But that's as nothing when compared To Mrs. Housewife's pique.

SUCCESS STORY

Mrs. Ellsworth Homan, jr., of 2621 30th st. se. says we mustn't close our discussion of Give-Away items without hearing one more report on how these placements turn out.

Because the family was moving, the Homan setter had to find a new home. Our item started the phone ringing at 6:30 a. m., and it continued to ring until the family had 37 applicants for the pup.

The best possible home was chosen, and the deciding factor in the choice was the sincerity of the little 9-year-old boy in that household.

Subsequent contacts show that boy and dog are now fast friends, and much happier for having found each other.

"So long as your Give-Aways accomplish results like that," says Mrs. Homan, "keep up the good work and don't let anybody talk you out of eliminating this useful service."

Incidentally, the Give-Aways have also been successful in raising some money for worthwhile charities.

Mrs. Ralph S. White of 3151 Mount Pleasant st. nw. recently offered an electric train set, a crib and mattress, and several other valuable items to anybody who would make a contribution to a favorite charity.

The result is that a check is now in the mail for the Salvation Army (from T. B. Blevins of 1308 Park rd. nw.) and another is going to the Christ Child Convalescent Farm (from Harold J. Ichilian of 9 Westmoreland ave., Takoma Park, Md.)

Mrs. White got rid of some things she didn't want. District Liners Blevins and Ichilian obtained some things they did want, and sweet charity profited most of all. That's one deal in which everybody won.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Four kittens, 3 months old." (Wisconsin 1169).

STREET SCENE

Our reporter for this one is Ruth H. Lane of 619 N. Jefferson st., Arlington, Va.

It was during the worst of the heat wave. The bus was crowded with cross mothers and their shrieking, ill-mannered children.

In the midst of this pandemonium sat a calm young mother, holding her husky 2-year-old son. The child was so docile he was conspicuous.

A gushing old lady leaned across the aisle and said: "It's remarkable how quiet your son is. How did you ever train him to behave so beautifully?"

"Very simple," smiled the young mother as she stroked her son's head affectionately. "He knows that if he starts anything, I'll BOP him."

DEPT. OF UTTER NONSENSE

Margaret D. Button of 5507 Charles st., Bethesda, Md., reminds us of the strawberry that turned to another strawberry and asked, "Hey, how did we ever get into this jam?"

Very good, Margaret. And, as the barber's scissors said to the comb: "Let's get out of this clip joint."

NEW WORDS DEPT.

Now that hotels are featuring television receivers in many of their rooms, Gertrude E. Huffman of 2823 Minnesota ave. se. wonders whether this new service can properly be termed "hotelevision."

HOW'S THAT AGAIN?

E. M. Peterson observes that our taxes are like the farmer's ditch. The more he cut it, the bigger it got.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

I read your column with exactly the same interest as the social notes and "Rings on Their Fingers."

Dear Miss Wolfe:

Is that good or bad? Bill.

CONFUSING, ISN'T IT?

The 6600 blocks of Exeter, Exfair and Fairfax rds. are a source of never-ending amazement to me.

You could swing a cat by the tail out there and have the poor creature pass through at least three different communities.

Apparently the residents of the area pick the name they consider most euphonious. They have their choice of Bethesda, Bradley Village, Battery Park and Bethesda-Edgemoor.

If you think I'm making this up as I go along, consider the 6600 block of Exeter rd.

On one side of the street (even numbers) we have W. Vincent Borger at 6604 and John A. Singerhoff at 6608. The Borgers are listed as living in Battery Park, and the Singerhoffs reside in Bethesda-Edgemoor.

On the other side of the street (odd numbers) William B. Palmer is at 6607 and R. L. Hulburt is at 6609. The Palmers are in Bethesda-Edgemoor and the Hulburts in Battery Park.

The only thing I really understand about the area is that it's all in Maryland. I think.

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—Bernard Baruch has sailed for England, where he will visit his old friend Winston Churchill. Exactly 10 years ago Baruch went to England on a personal mission for President Roosevelt. He spent long hours with Churchill, who at that time had practically no power in the government . . . They discussed the rise of the Nazi might and the war which Churchill was positive would soon come. "The Big Show is coming," said Churchill—who then adled this poor prophecy: "And in this Big Show, I'll be sitting on the sidelines and you again will be one of those who'll run it."

Dore Schary, who resigned as head of RKO because Howard Hughes interferred with three of his movie projects, could have held Hughes to his studio contract. The only financial settlement they made concerned the projection room being built in Schary's home . . . David O. Selznick has surveyed the television field and is ready to start showing 'em how.

Danny Seymour, the quiz master for the "Sing It Again" radio program, purchased an electric fan for his home one day. He brought the fan into CBS' Playhouse 4, where the broadcast originates, and then went out for a few hours. When he returned he couldn't find his fan . . . The page-boys searched for it and couldn't explain its loss. Then it was discovered that John Reed King, quiz master on the "Give and Take" program which is broadcast from the same studio, had seen the fan when he arrived, assumed it was a program prop and had awarded it to a contestant who supplied a correct answer.

The New York Times, whose art department painted a jacket onto Tennessee Williams in a photo of the Pulitzer Prize playwright, was busy again last Sunday — painting straps on the strapless gown worn by Jane Pickens, in a photo published by the newspaper.

Eddie Davis, the musical comedy author, has sold his newest, "Master of Ceremonies," to Milton Berle. Another musical by Davis, "So to Wed," will be produced by Al Lewis.

Queen Marie Jose of Italy, daughter of the late King Albert of Belgium, is spending her time in Switzerland writing her memoirs. She will tell her version of the twilight of the Italian monarchy.

Frances Heflin, the younger sister of Van Heflin, is in London now rehearsing with Helen Hayes in "The Glass Menagerie." Miss Heflin, who won her best Broadway notices in "I Remember Mama," now is a mama herself. Her husband is working on a movie assignment in Paris. Miss Heflin took their 6-month-old baby to London with her. She couldn't get a nurse or a babysitter for the child, and so she adopted the infant-toting trick she had seen used by the Indian women in her native Oklahoma. She carries the baby strapped to her back, like a papoose, in the theater where the play is being rehearsed. And when it's Miss Heflin's turn to read lines, she straps the child onto the back of the stage manager.

Tito Seen Between Devil and Sea

By Drew Pearson

Memories of an ex-Yugoslav resident: Stalin might have taken a leaf from an American relief worker's notebook before he embroidered the Red star on the Yugoslav patchwork quilt . . . As individuals, Yugoslavs are among the swellest people in the world, but also the most difficult. Taken ensemble they are impossible . . . Basically they are no more Communist than Tom Girdler and never will be — especially the Serbs, Bosnians, Herzegovinians and Montenegrins . . . Some of them like Tito because they love to fight, and Tito is a swashbuckler who speaks their language . . . For a thousand years, the Yugoslavs — especially the Serbs — have fought off wave after wave of Turkish invaders . . . The plains of Kossovo and Macedonia in southern Serbia are dotted with crimson poppies — reminders, so say the Serbs, of the blood spilled fighting the Turks . . . Having finally liberated themselves from one conqueror, the Serbs aren't anxious for another conquest by communism — as this writer has so frequently pointed out.

Will Tito die in bed? — About a year ago this crystal-gazer predicted Tito would be assassinated before the year was up. The prediction was wrong. But it was based upon the certain knowledge that the trigger-happy dictator of Yugoslavia would have to change his tactics or die with his boots on. . . Few Kings of Yugoslavia in the past have died in bed. When they get unpopular they get bumped off . . . Tito was getting unpopular with three sets of his own people; (1) the Serbs, because he is a Croat; (2) with many Croats because they are Roman Catholic and don't appreciate communism; (3) with peasants in all parts of the country.

Tito

Moscow orders the impossible— Tito found himself the fall guy between two sets of ideas that didn't have a chance in the world of jelling . . . The Kremlin told him to communize the peasants, and the peasants didn't want to be communized . . . Yugoslav peasants are a lot different from Russian peasants, where the land is flat and where farmers live in villages for protection, going out in the daytime to work on the land . . . In contrast Yugoslavia is rough and wild, with the peasants living in isolated areas. Community life, except on Sunday, is as foreign to them as the Czar's gold bathtubs. They have defended their 12 hectares from the Turks, the Bulgars, the Austrians and the Nazis and they are not going to give their land up now to any new-fangled idea of community farming . . . Furthermore, any government agent who tries to tell them otherwise gets a bullet in the neck for his pains . . . So Tito, faced with trouble at home or trouble in the Kremlin, chose trouble that was farthest away.

Tito's great illusion — What gripes the Russians is that Tito has forgotten he was "Made in Moscow." He seems to think he is a self-made man . . . Here are some flashbacks into history, which the Russians remember, even if Tito does not. Incidentally, several high American diplomats remember them, too:

Scene 1 — Tehran: Stalin, in expansive mood, having won his second-front program, proceeded to give some advice to Churchill about the Balkans. If Britain wanted to control Dalmatia, he advised, it was a mistake to operate through General Mihailovitch, a Serb. Britain should take over Tito, a Croat, in order to be successful. In fact, Stalin generously offered Tito to Churchill on a sort of human lend-lease deal.

Scene 2 — Tito's hide-away in Bosnia: Churchill and FDR both accepted Stalin's advice, not so much because they trusted Tito but because they had intercepted radio messages between Mihailovitch and the Nazis . . . Churchill even sent his son, Randolph, and Brig. Fitzroy McLean as liaison officers to Tito . . . But one night, a Nazi airborne division swooped down on Tito's headquarters. He barely escaped. On that particular night, for the first time in months, both young Churchill and Brig. McLean were absent. Tito was suspicious — and furious.

Scene 3—British Headquarters, Bari, Italy: Some days later Tito flew to Bari, where the British had arranged a special Yugoslav headquarters. His plane was surrounded by Yugoslav troops. No British officials were allowed near . . . That night Tito, dining with British commander Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, arrived with 12 husky Yugoslav guards carrying tommy-guns, lined them up around the dining room . . . "I say, marshal," remarked Gen. Wilson, "isn't this a most unusual procedure?" . . . "This, general," replied Tito, "is a most unusual war" . . . Still suspicious that the British were trying to kill him, Tito flew next day to Bucharest, conferred with Russian bigwigs, began his close tie-up with Moscow. He was through with the British . . . Doubtless the Russians now wish the British had done to Tito what Tito thought they were trying to do to him.

Yugoslavia wants United States aid — State Department officials, secretly briefing the army on the Tito-Kremlin row, said that Tito wanted aid under the Marshall Plan. Here's hoping the State Department is right . . . However, its Ambassador to Yugoslavia, Cavendish Cannon, supposed to keep Washington informed, quietly left Belgrade before the Tito break for one of those long diplomatic vacations, and the State Department is trying frantically to get him back . . . However, it's true that Yugoslavia has leaned heavily on United States aid in the past, and most of its people have been strongly pro-American . . . There's even one village in southern Serbia, Parsonavatz, named for the head of a relief unit which rebuilt that section . . . You'll also find about every third Montenegrin you meet in the mountains has worked in the steel mills of Pittsburgh, Youngstown or Cleveland . . . Last thing the real people of Yugoslavia want is trouble with the United States, but rather our help and friendship . . . First break in the Iron Curtain undoubtedly has come.

THIS WEEK THE HECHT COMPANY SALUTES THE

Bureau of Engraving and Printing

And Its People Who Engrave And Print The Currency And Documents So Vital To The Operation Of Our Government

• The Bureau of Engraving and Printing . . . in the fiscal year of 1947 . . . manufactured over a billion currency notes in all denominations. If laid end to end, the notes would make over five belts around the earth at the equator . . . laid flat on top of each other, they would make eight hundred seventy-three stacks, each one as high as the Washington Monument.

• The Bureau of Engraving and Printing . . . came into being in 1862 . . . when a force of two men and four women, working in an attic room of the main Treasury Building, began to stamp and sign $1 and $2 notes which had been printed by private bank note companies. It was not until 1880 that Congress appropriated the necessary funds for the Bureau to construct its own building.

• The Bureau of Engraving and Printing . . . designs, prints and engraves a multitude of items . . . the most important of which is paper currency. In no other country of the world is greater skill utilized in the making of paper money. Every note is an outstanding example of the skill and patience of individual artists and steel engravers . . . working with the most modern machinery, especially designed for the work.

• The Bureau of Engraving and Printing . . . uses a special paper for the printing of paper money. Composed of 50 per cent linen and 50 per cent cotton, and containing small segments of red and blue fibers, it is almost impossible to duplicate. It is manufactured by a commercial firm under strict Government supervision. Even the inks used for printing the various kinds of securities are formulated and manufactured at the Bureau.

• The Bureau of Engraving and Printing . . . produces all of our bonds and stamps, postal savings certificates, invitation and admission cards to the White House, diplomas for the Coast Guard Academy, officers' commissions, certificates of meritorious awards made to service personnel by the Army and Navy . . . and hundreds of other fine engravings which testify to the artistry of the Bureau's craftsmen.

When Man invented money as a medium of exchange, he took a great stride forward in the development of human trade. Instead of having to give a sheep for clothing . . . and then some of the clothing, perhaps, for shoes . . . he was in position to divide his wealth into small, convenient units. When he invented paper money, he took another step ahead. Here was a handy, efficient medium of exchange . . . convenient to carry about, inexpensive to manufacture. The people of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing are responsible for the extremely important job of making all of the paper currency we use to run our businesses, our homes, our lives. They are experts in their craft . . . probably unequaled in the entire world. Many of their other printed products . . . United States Government Bonds, postage and revenue stamps, diplomas and commissions . . . are vital to the sound operation of our Government. Turning out the billions of dollars of currency so necessary to conduct our industries and our homes . . . engraving the varied stamps, bonds and certificates required by many of our Government's agencies . . . are fifty-eight hundred skilled workers of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing who combine their efforts to operate the Bureau's tremendous, intricate printing plant . . . the largest of its kind in the world. The Hecht Company takes pleasure in extending this tribute to its thousands of friends of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing . . . whose work is so essential to our economic life.
